Innovative projects begin at Wildwood School

by Arlene Surprenant
Some innovative projects will get underway soon at the Wildwood Elementary School. One is a telecommunications program using new computer software and hardware to provide library and research skills instruction and a pen pal network across town. The other is a pilot program produced by Lego Educational Systems to offer students experience in math, science, and technology concepts.

According to Principal Michael Tikonoff, the school received a Capital Improvement Grant to buy software and hardware to develop a telecommunications system. Tikonoff told the Town Crier he hopes to build a computer network to link the three elementary schools and the two intermediate schools.

At his former job at the School of the Future in Cambridge, Tikonoff said students were able to telecommunicate with their peers in Russia and Spanish Harlem. The grant is seen as a "first step" in eventually hooking up with other schools and towns.

Through the telecommunications set-up, students will also be taught electronics information retrieval to access huge data bases of information.

To get the project off the ground, media specialist Roxanne Mendinos will conduct in-service training for library media specialists and selected teachers beginning October 27.

In the second project, grades four and five will soon be receiving science material kits from Lego titled Technic I and Technic II. These kits, said Tikonoff, will help teach concrete and abstract concepts and scientific thinking. The next step will be to interface much of the material with computers.

Tikonoff piloted the Lego program last year when he was in Cambridge and the feedback, he said, was "outstanding."

Teachers will learn how to utilize the material through in-service workshops. If the program is successful, Tikonoff said he will recommend it to the other elementary schools.

Another exciting program began last February when the Lesley Outreach Program got underway. The program, which is run by Lesley College and coordinated by Tikonoff, offers a Master's Degree in computers and curriculum to teachers both in and out of the Wilmington system.

Teachers have the chance to take intense classes during a two year period at a reduced cost. Currently, there are 18 Wilmington teachers enrolled in the program, including six from the Wildwood School alone. Other teachers from neighboring towns are also enrolled in the week-end courses. Classes are conducted at the Wildwood School computer lab.

"The teachers are so fired up it's just incredible," said Tikonoff, adding "it takes a creative teacher to integrate software and curriculum, and we have many of them."

It is hoped another program will be offered in the spring both for teachers and the community at large.

Reading Light marks 'Public Power Week'

The month of October has been known as "Fire Prevention Month" throughout the nation. It is now also known as "Energy Awareness Month" according to the U.S. Department of Energy. To coincide with this celebration, the American Public Power Association (APPA), has declared the week of October 9-15 as "Public Power Week."

"The first of the two programs, Energy Awareness Month, focuses on energy conservation programs and the other, Public Power Week, will highlight the activities and value of municipally owned public power facilities," said Len Rucker, General Manager of the Reading Municipal Light Department. "As a result, the RMLD will join 2200 other municipal utilities throughout the United States in marking this occasion."

"Throughout the month and specifically during Public Power Week, the RMLD will make literature available which will promote energy saving techniques as well as tell our customers about our system here in the communities of Reading, Wilmington, North Reading and Lynnfield." According to Manager Rucker, arrangements have been made to make this material available in the libraries as well as the school throughout the four communities. "We will also be sponsoring an educational Electrical Safety Awareness Program with the school system of the four towns," he added.

Cable television stations in the RMLD service area will be supplied with safety films throughout the year with the hope of airing them as public service announcements.

"We will also make available during the week of October 9 through 15, a night light which we will give free of charge to the first 1,000 customers who visit our main office at 25 Haven Street," said Manager Rucker. "It will hopefully serve as a reminder to those people who use it, that energy conservation starts with you."

"The RMLD will be celebrating its 93rd year this year," said Philip Pacino, chairman of the RMLD Board of Light Commissioners. "We plan to release a special supplement to the local papers which will feature the history of the RMLD along with articles about our personnel, historical photos, energy conservation and electrical safety tips, and photos of personnel at work serving the community."

"We have a proud group of employees," added Pacino. "It is only fitting that we show them in action as we dedicate this supplement to them. Like the strong commitment the Department has in the communities it serves, our personnel has an equally strong commitment to serve our customers in a professional, personable, yet efficient manner."

ESTIMATED TAX FOR JUNIOR

If your youngster has to pay taxes of at least $500 on unearned income such as dividends and interest, the child will have to pay estimated taxes, just like any other taxpayer. And the Internal Revenue Service sets the same tough rules: prepay 90 percent of taxes due (or 100 percent of last year's tax bill, whichever is less), or face a penalty.

One way around estimated taxes is with withholding; if a child has an after-school job, the W-4 form can be filled out so that enough taxes are withheld to meet the entire tax bill. The advantage is that withheld taxes are considered to have been paid throughout the year, making up for tax payments that were due April 15, June 15, and September 15. Earned income also increases the deduction that can be taken against high-taxed unearned income.

Job or not, it's not too late to file estimated taxes now (the last payment is due January 15) to avoid a penalty.

What are your tax obligations? Talk it over with the tax people.

Crushed asphalt concerns concomm

by Arlene Surprenant

The effect of recycled crushed asphalt on nearby wetlands and a concern over trees mistakenly cut along a long driveway on Butters Row occupied members of the Wilmington Conservation Commission last Wednesday.

Commissioners reviewed a request by Steve Noonan to construct a 500-foot driveway within the buffer zone on the south side of Butters Row. Noonan's engineer Erich Nitzsche said Noonan has a variance from the board of appeals to subdivide the four acre property into two lots. He added the owner still needed board of health approval of his septic system plans.

Problems arose when Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian noted that trees had already been cut along the driveway which runs to Noonan's house. Sabounjian said she had hoped to save some of the big pines and leave vegetation in its natural state because of the runoff involved. Noonan was told no work can legally be done on his property until 10 days after an order of conditions is issued. Tom Roussel suggested the board condition the replanting of the trees.

Noonan explained he was only told by a local developer not to go beyond the flagged wetland when he took down the trees. He said he wanted to remove the trees to clear some space and improve the entranceway to the property.

Commissioner John White brought up a concern with Noonan's proposed use of crushed asphalt for the driveway. He said he feared dust and oil might be released over a period of time and impact the wetland. Others said the material was new to them and they were unsure how it would affect the wetlands. They asked the engineer to set up a review of a site which uses the material.

Nitzsche agreed to the board's request, but noted that other materials like crushed stone and gravel create more dust than crushed asphalt when they dry. He said Noonan favored the asphalt because it improves "percolation characteristics" on the site. Noonan added he would be willing to switch to another material if the board deemed it necessary.

Commissioners said they would like to walk the site before issuing any order of conditions.

RESTRICTIVE COVENANTS IN PLANNED COMMUNITIES

If you are considering purchasing a home in a planned community, be sure you understand the ground rules set by the owners' association. These covenants can cover a wide range of subjects, including exterior paint jobs, where campers may be parked, where you can walk your dog, and what kinds of shrubs or flowers you may plant in your front yard.

These covenants have their attractions for many purchasers. You don't have to worry about your neighbors doing some types of things that you might find offensive. At the same time, however they could cramp your style if you're an individualist and wouldn't appreciate possible community interference in plans for your home. If you're buying a home in a planned community, make your offer contingent on your seeing and approving any neighborhood rules and regulations.

Car wash owner seeks sewer tie-in

The Wilmington Car Wash has a problem. It is not connected to a public sewer. Bernie Glovsky, who runs the car wash, would like to be connected.

Sometime four or five months ago Bernie visited the Wilmington Water & Sewer Commissioners. He would like to run a sewer across the railroad track to the big sewer main on the other side, he said. The commissioners agreed to help.

Bernie was told of a fund available in the state house which would help to pay part of the cost. He was told to get a consortium of neighboring businessmen and homeowners who might like to share in expenses, and get a sewer. And Bernie departed with the blessings of the commissioners.

The problem, since then, has come to a head. One of the neighboring business firms did not want to participate.

So Bernie started a petition to have the sewer put in place under the Betterment Plan. Under that plan the town and the participants split the costs.

The petition for Betterments showed up at the meeting of the sewer and water commissioners on October 6. It was not greeted with any joy.

Chairman George Allan was the principle spokesman. The money that is coming from the state house, Allan said, is "the town's share of the costs." By seeking Betterments the proponents are increasing the share that the town would have to pay.

"This will ruin all the private sewer digging problems which are now being planned" Allan said. "All the work that has gone on, in Ballardvale Street, will have those owners seeking betterments!"

"Tell the board of selectmen that we will speak up against this!"

Allan added that the state DEQE, since last summer, has "frozen" everything for new grant programs. Everyone is waiting for Frank Keefe (state administrator of finance) to unfreeze the funds.

Tewksbury teens given a "drug-free" hangout

by Steve Weissberger
Teenagers in Tewksbury will now have a place to "hang out" that's free of drugs and alcohol.

The school committee voted unanimously on Wednesday night to designate the area behind Center School to be used as a gathering place for young adults on weekend nights.

School Committee member William Emerson, called the area "a place they can identify as their own, free from drugs and alcohol."

Tewksbury Police Chief John Mackey, said that he supports the decision and would like to see how it works out.

According to Emerson, the topic came up after a recent high school assembly in which the students were warned about the dangers of drugs and alcohol. They were told that the police would be cracking down on them for drinking in public areas.

Emerson said that several students stayed back after the assembly and asked for a place to use on weekends.

Foster School was originally looked at. But it was determined that it is too close to Main Street, so Center School was chosen, Emerson said.

According to Emerson, the teenagers will be doing a lot of the policing themselves, but it will also be heavily patrolled by the police.

Emerson said about 30 or 40 students initially were interested, but the actual number who will use the area could exceed 100.

If drugs or alcohol are used in the area the students understand that they will have lost their privileges to use the space, Emerson said.

Mail delivery no small operation

There are, at this time, approximately 800 businesses in Wilmington to which the Wilmington postoffice delivers 70,000 letters per day. This, combined with the delivery to homes and post office box holders bring in a total of about 25,000,000 letters a year to Wilmington. So Postmaster Jack Quinn told the members of the Wilmington Rotary Club on September 28.

He finds that it is not a small operation. In recent months, since he became postmaster he has hired more employees, and there is a total of 35 present every morning while the mail is being sorted. Quinn has a goal of getting all mail in boxes by 9 a.m. and in the hands of the delivery persons at the same time.

At the present time the US

Postoffice has a goal of automation. Automatic readers are to be used for sorting mail, with a reading of 5,000 letters per hour.

Outgoing mail is not sorted in the Wilmington postoffice. It is all put in sacks and shipped to the Woburn Sectional Office, where it is sorted and shipped out. All mail from Wilmington to Massachusetts addresses is delivered within one day.

Thirty-five percent of the income for the Postoffice Department comes from the processing of bulk mail, Quinn said. There is, he added, a firm in Peabody which prepares addresses for this type of mail. It has addresses for sale, divided by the age, business sports or other classification of the recipients.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Officer Robert Vassallo received his stripes on the Wilmington Police Department the old fashioned way - he earned them. One of Wilmington's many finest, who genuinely care about protecting this community and serving people on a daily basis, Vassallo is the man at the P.D. who lost his sergeant stripes in a ruling by the town manager over charges of abusing a local resident taken into custody. This ruling was appealed by Vassallo and recently upheld by the state civil service commission. The matter has now gone to civil litigation.

Vassallo is guilty of doing his job. That's something the manager failed to realize from day one, and there are a multitude of political reasons for this that stare us right in the face. But first, some background on a very unhappy night in the life of a local family.

There's little reason to mention their name here again. They're fine people, and like a lot of Americans these days they have a child with a history of problems. Beside that, they are respected in the community and should not be looked down upon because of the stigma of one family member.

On February 23, 1985 there was an eruption at this household that required help from the police department. The family's son, by his own admission, had been injecting himself with what is commonly referred to as 'speedballs'; a combination of cocaine and heroine. It was this same combination of narcotics that a few years ago caused the death of actor John Belushi.

The parents naturally called for help, and Sergeant Vassallo, who supervised the 4:00 to 12:00 shift, arrived at the scene with two other officers.

Upon arriving, police found the son with blood on his arms, apparently from punching a water heater. This individual had a history of narcotic abuse and violent offenses. In fact, this month he goes to trial on charges of assault and battery against a local resident.

But back to 1985. Following a discussion with both parents, the police took the son into protective custody. After resisting and having to be hand-cuffed while down on the ground, the boy was soon taken to the police headquarters on Adelaide Street. By now it was after midnight, and a new sergeant had come on duty, Jay Palmer.

The controversy that has cost Vassallo his sergeant stripes and endless personal grief originated in the jail section at the department. While being put behind bars by one of the officers, the young man became violent. The prisoner charged at Sergeant Vassallo, who maintains he instinctively brought up his knee in a self-defense reaction. As a result, the boy was cut on the lip but required no medical treatment.

One might think the story would end here. An experienced police sergeant named Bob Vassallo, who also has his law degree, defends himself against an attack by a young man under the influence of cocaine and heroine, who had been roughing up his mother and father.

But that's not how the story ended.

Though Vassallo had spoken with the boy's father about the incident in the jail, and the father agreed that no further action was necessary, things began to be blown out of proportion in the subsequent hours. Vassallo later learned that the parent had returned, spoken to midnight Sergeant Palmer, and decided to file charges against Vassallo for abusing his son.

It is common knowledge that both Sergeants Palmer and Vassallo had a long standing feud at the police department, and were far from being friends with one another.

On July 10, 1986 the town manager demoted Vassallo to patrolman.

Meanwhile, Vassallo contends that he has been fighting an uphill battle against the political establishment at town hall.

Ironically, the demotion followed a $10,000 settlement Vassallo had paid to the family on the advice of legal counsel. Vassallo contends that he was not admitting guilt, but instead was attempting to settle a delicate situation. However, the powers that be had other things in store for him.

Vassallo's appeal has recently been denied by the civil service commission, and now he has taken his case to the courts. And, while everyone is talking about the need to crack down on drugs and be tough on crime, Bob Vassallo is demoted for defending himself against attack from a young man spaced on a dangerous combination of narcotics.

There's something wrong here.

Dear Larz:

My thanks to the League of Women Voters of Wilmington for the public forum October 4, 1988 in presenting the conditions dealing with the protection of our town's water and aquifer's.

In the further interest of aquifer protection your study group may want to visit the Salem Street wellsite and see what has transpired in a residentially zoned area of your town on top of one of the latest of Wilmington's wellsites. Each day something new seems to be added. Like paved over area that directs the water off of Route 62 to the aquifer area. It was pointed out by the state people the danger source from roads is salts, and other potential spills.

My concern with Shea's had not only been in aquifer protection but also with potential bad accidents. Their trucks and cars pull in and out all over. A controlled curb cut area is not to be had. They use the whole length of their property and with it being on a hill, and one driving directly into rising and setting suns at the most busy times of day, a most hazardous condition is created. But this was not the subject of your meeting for the study group that you had on the issue "Water Protection" presented on October 4.

Still I do not believe the issue of the Salem Street wellsite should be studied as present town officials have taken no action in the conditions that exist there. For example: I requested the board of health evaluate and give me a report on the materials Shea's use while pouring to allow removal of their products. Some residue has to remain on the product and while sitting outside in the weather it can wash off into the wellfield. A few PPM can destroy a well. It may set up its own plume and pollute the Salem Street well.

Another item is the environmental effect of their trucks driving over the old Wilmington landfill there. With its loss, where and how will it effect Wilmington. Many more questions need to be asked and answered about it.

Talking about doubt, it is doubtful that zoning laws will mean a thing in Wilmington. Why, look again at Shea's. Sorry to bring this place up but it's an excellent case in point. It's a "Residential Zoned Area," on one of the town's major wellsites that officials of the Town of Wilmington have given their blessings to. First, water and sewer commission to use wellfield land to store industrial material on. Second, to allow Shea to expand by leasing them the land, and allowing Shea to build a large new industrial building. It is clear we have town officials who do not care about aquifer protection until a crisis occurs.

"How does the concerned resident get prompt honest up-front answers?" One young fellow asked of your chairman of the board of selectmen, "How can a thing like Patches Pond happen?" And to this; "How can the good work of Charles Eliot go unused so long?" It was to be used as a planning tool. After 18 years with some of the same town officials still in place, it has been ignored.

I too will not give up on the protection of water, for one cannot sit back on our zoning bylaws in making sure we have some kind of aquifer protection. You are all aware of the Affordable Housing Task Force presenting its articles at the special fall town meeting. This was the reason for Charles W. Eliot's pages 11-233, 11-234 presented to you in handouts. With no aquifer protection through zoning and allowing developers to down size 20,000 sq. ft. lots to 14,000 sq. ft. and considering Eliot's comments on planned villages, "Planned Residential Development" it would be foolhardy for the residents to accept these articles as presently submitted.

Even the chairman of the planning board agrees something needs to be done. Mr. Stewart confirmed this. At your meeting when the Patches Pond information came out. Even today aquifer protection is still being thought of as a simple housekeeping article being required. It would seem after 18 years of being ignored, and one sees the results. It is about time. Being as the chairman of affordable housing does not see as I do, he by the way is also your chairman of aquifer protection, and chairman of the board of selectmen, I feel I must submit my resignation to the Affordable Housing Task Force so that I do not have a conflict of interest in aquifer and water protection and other issues. My efforts will be to make the public aware. If necessary, to defeat these articles until aquifer and water protection is incorporated. PRD being included.

With their proposed PRD, the planning board can accept it before the Conservation Commission has a chance to give an order of conditions.

May I again give my personal thanks to the League for taking on this issue. You people are welcome to my maps to use as you please. You have my best wishes toward the water and aquifer protection endeavor you have undertaken.

Again my congratulations for an informative panel forum presentation.

Conrad J. Gerhartz

Board of Selectmen
Wilmington, Massachusetts
Gentlemen:

The Wilmington Historical Commission wishes to submit for the record the following opposition to the proposed redesign of the intersection of Middlesex Avenue and Glen Road.

The Wilmington Historical Commission has been working toward the establishment of a National Historic District in the area which has long been recognized as the Centre Village. National Historic District recognition would open up federal funds to the Town of Wilmington and private citizens of the area who wish their properties included. The intersection of Middlesex Avenue and Glen Road is in the middle of this district. Alterations of this property would endanger the possibility of National Historic District registration, as the historical environment would be severely impacted.

The island at the junction of Middlesex Avenue and Glen Road is a Wilmington historic landmark. It is the site of the original town scales; and since 1918, is a memorial to Harold R. Rogers who died in our country's service during World War I.

The Wilmington Historical Commission urges you to consider the historic significance of this area to the Town of Wilmington before you act.

Sincerely,

Carolyn R.S. Harris chairperson,
Historical Commission

Referendum Question #1:
Legislative pay increase

by Bill Conlon

Question One on the November 8 is a Referendum Petition which was brought by citizens of the Commonwealth in hopes of repealing an existing law. The other three ballot questions are Initiative Petitions, or requests to enact a new law, while Question One deals with a law already in existence.

At issue is a pay increase for state Legislators and certain officers of the commonwealth, including the Governor, which Legislators voted for themselves on May 20, 1987.

The base pay for being a state Legislator (a part-time job) went from $30,000 a year to $40,992 because of the pay raise, or an increase of 37 percent. Also included in the increase was a proviso to award from $7,500 to $35,000 to any Legislator who holds a committee chairmanship or certain leadership positions. Up until 1983, state Legislators were paid $20,000 per year.

The Legislative pay raises were tied to the increases granted to various state employees' union under collective bargaining agreements, and periodic increases in their salaries will now be given without any need of a roll call vote. Legislators from now on will receive the same percentage pay increases that the state union employees do, and at the same time.

But even more controversial is the manner in which the pay raise was enacted. An "emergency preamble" was placed on the bill to hurry it along, and to make the pay increases retroactive to January of 1987, though some have questioned whether a pay raise would qualify as a legitimate emergency.

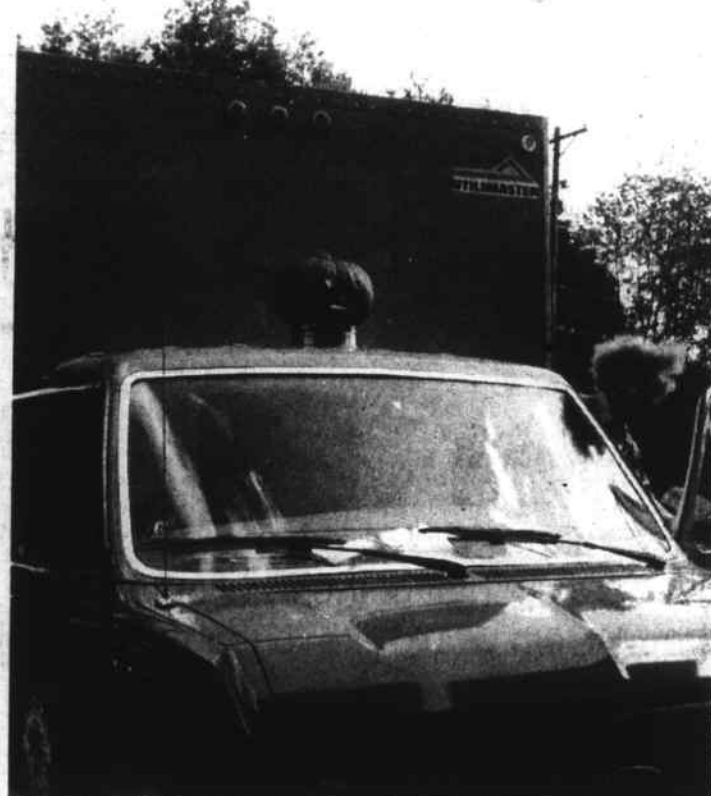

Perhaps state Legislators do deserve a pay increase, along with increases in pay for being Governor, Lieutenant Governor, state treasurer, state secretary or state auditor. But a 37 percent increase seems a bit steep, giving bonuses for chairmanships is unusual, and making future pay increases automatic is even worse.

The emergency preamble was just outrageous, in and of itself.

Elected officials should be answerable to their voters for any pay increase they receive, since they are allowed to vote to increase their own wages. But this pay raise was obviously approved without much, if any, voter approval.

A yes vote on Question One would allow the pay increase to stand as is, but a no vote would repeal it.

You make the decision.

Children's Room is busy

Business is booming along with the baby boom in the Wilmington Memorial Library's Children's Room as staff catch their breath and plunge into fall after a highly colorful and successful "Safari Summer;" and they're looking for more help.

Story hours have begun; October school assignments are filling the room with students; parents are browsing among the new books in the Parenting Collection; teachers are choosing piles of books to supplement their classroom collections; avid readers are requesting the latest Babysitters' novel - not yet published; and Assistant Children's Librarian Susan MacDonald is keeping a firm hand and eye on the circulation desk as thousands of books go in and out.

To keep up with all this activity, Sarah Reuter, head of children's services at the library, reports enthusiastically that a fine group of junior volunteers donate their time afternoons and Saturdays to help shelve books and keep the room in order. In addition, because of newly increased evening hours in the Children's Room (Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays until 9 p.m.), more part time staff are being added.

Christina Stewart, former full time Head of Reference and Adult Services, is providing the extra professional level help needed Tuesday evenings and every third Saturday. She has recently arranged an exhibit of children's books in connection with Fire Prevention Week and is preparing a list of books about firemen and fire engines for preschoolers.

Mrs. Arlene Ten Dyke, part time Children's Room assistant, will be participating in the Family Filmstrip Program scheduled for November by sharing some of her flannel board stories with the children as well as filling in regularly at the circulation desk and helping to put books away.

Elia's store a Wilmington tradition

© Copyright 1988 by
Capt. Larz Nelson

Elia's Country Store is one of the local business firms which may disappear because the MBTA wants to increase its parking space in North Wilmington. It just happens to be the business which is quite probably the oldest in Wilmington.

There was a store on that site during the Civil War. It is quite possible that the store antedates that war.

The railroad which crosses Middlesex Avenue in North Wilmington was constructed in 1844 - 5. The first train was on July 4, 1845.

At that time there was no stop for the trains in North Wilmington. In 1851 passengers could board the train for a trip to Boston. A railroad station was constructed in 1855. That station burned down in 1912 and another one was erected.

Sometime about 1855 - 60 a tannery was started, in the field southerly from the store, about 800 or 900 feet away, by a firm known as Perry & Cutler. Both of those men lived in Winchester. They located their firm in North Wilmington because the tanneries of the 19th century needed a brook nearby, in which to wash their leather after it had been retted. That word, uncommon today, means to remove hair, which was done by soaking cowhides in chicken manure.

The Civil War proved to be a boon to Perry & Cutler. The Union Army needed tanned leather, for the shoes that the Boys in Blue were wearing, as they marched off to battle. Perry & Cutler, and many other firms supplied that leather.

With passenger trains, and a growing (in size) tannery there was an opportunity for a general store in the neighborhood. That opportunity was fulfilled by a man named Jonathan Carter.

Jonathan Carter lived in the house which is the home of the Mullarky family today, at the corner of Mystic Avenue and Middlesex Avenue. That gentleman did not build the home. It had been, about 20 years previously the home of the Rev. Thomas M. Durgin. He was the clergyman for the Free Will Baptist Church, in the building on Middlesex Avenue which eventually became the Wilmington Town Hall. He also taught school, wintertimes in the South School, which stood on Butters Row, right beside the old Middlesex Canal. Mr. Durgin enjoyed a very fine reputation among the scholastically minded people of Wilmington.

A map of Wilmington, printed in the early 1870s, showed that Jonathan Carter lived in the former home of the Rev. Mr. Durgin, which at the present time is at the corner of Mystic Avenue. It also shows a store at the intersection of Middlesex Avenue and the B&M Railroad, owned by J. Carter. The site is the same as the store today. There was also a post office, in that store.

Buck Brothers

According to the obituary of Herbert Nathan Buck (1912) the store was purchased by the Buck Brothers, Herbert, Sidney and George "about 25 years ago." That would put the purchase date about 1887, but it does not fully agree with the Buck family tradition. There is an ancient tale in that family which says that Herbert Buck built the store.

It might probably be that the two stores (purchase, and building) are only different parts of the same tale.

The building, in 1912 was a two story structure, with a second story being used as a family dwelling. It was rented, over the years, to various families. One of those was the Surrutte family, and the late Walter Surrutte was born in that upstairs apartment.

It could well be, and probably was, that Herbert Buck had a new building constructed. He was an intelligent individual. He and his brother George ran two stores, under the name of Buck Brothers.

Herbert Buck ran the store in North Wilmington. The business was mainly devoted to groceries, but there was a section in which hay and grain were sold.

George Buck ran the store in Wilmington, near the entrance to the Wilmington railroad depot. His store was mainly devoted to hay and grain. He may also have sold groceries, but there is no satisfactory proof. In post World War II years his store was the domain of the late George Spanos and his restaurant. Spanos was dubbed the "Mayor of Wilmington" because every politician who came through Wilmington on a campaign tour stopped to have a picture taken, shaking hands with George.

Herbert Buck was a lively person. He was an active participant in many activities. He was, among other things, elected a selectman of Wilmington. Later he became a state representative. He died suddenly in 1912, at the age of 50, probably of a heart attack.

His son Rodney Buck, 18 years old, took over the store. Rodney's younger brother Walter worked with Rodney throughout the years, but it was Rodney who ran the store.

The store burned down in 1913 or 1914. A new store was constructed, this time a single store building. It is the same store that is on the site today.

The Elia brothers, John and Mike, purchased the store in 1956. They had grown up in the grocery business, in their father's store at the corner of West and Lowell streets. It is Mike Elia who runs the store in this year A.D. 1988, a store that is at least 125 years old.

Buck Bros.

Wilmington's first telephone exchange in the Buck Brothers store. The NET&T sign may be seen, hanging from the building, in a picture taken about 1913. There were eight telephones in the very beginning, one of which was that of Dr. Daniel Buzzell.

There was a second exchange in the home of Herbert Buck, to which the telephone calls went at night, and of which a young man named Rodney Buck took care.

Notice the Apollo Chocolates logo in the window - chocolates made by Fred Roberts of Burlington Avenue. The motorcycle belonged to a young man named Elmore Howe, of Cottage Street, Wilmington electrician.

Grocery delivery in the old days

No story of the Buck Brothers store in North Wilmington is complete without relating the part played by Louis Nichols. That gentleman and his family lived in the Middlesex Avenue home that is now the home of Atty. and Mrs. Robert Peterson. He worked for the Buck Brothers store for over 20, and maybe 30 years.

Louis had a job of selling groceries all over town. He probably inherited it from Herbert Buck. There is a picture still existing of Herbert and a horse and wagon.

This paper has a picture of Louis

Nichols and his wagon, but for the time being that picture must be regarded as "lost." It was taken by a photographer for the Boston Herald (not the same paper as exists today) back in 1931, on Middlesex Avenue, with the Babine house in the background. It was a fine picture.

The town was divided into sections, somewhat like the modern "precincts" and Louis visited each section in turn, so that he visited many homes on a regular schedule. That as in the days before automobiles were common, and many families did not have a horse and wagon.

Louis would spend four or five hours each morning calling on housewives for orders. Then, in the afternoon he delivered those groceries.

A nice, even tempered man, Louis Nichols was an asset to the Buck Brothers in his sales of groceries all over town.

His route was later taken over by Walter Buck, who delivered groceries out of a truck. Walter was the last Buck to retire from the store. He worked for John Elia well into the 1970's.

Store interior

An 1895 photograph of the interior of Buck Bros. store shows Forrest Buck, Frank Nichols and Herbert Buck. Forrest was born in 1888, and was an older brother to Rodney. Frank Nichols was the grandfather of the late Mildred Buck Neilson, and the chances are that he probably happened to be in the store when the photographer took the picture. Herbert Buck, at right, is quite evidently in the small room that served as a post office. The big wheel between him and the camera was a part of the machines used in that day to grind coffee.

Local priest takes part in landmark election

The Rev. Tansy Chapman, priest-in-charge of St. Elizabeth's Episcopal Mission Chapel, was a member of the nominating committee that led to the election of the Rev. Barbara Harris as Suffragan Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts. The Rev. Harris is the first woman bishop to be elected in the 450 history of the Anglican Church.

The Rev. Chapman travelled to Philadelphia last April with Edward Chase, a black layman, from Christ Church Cambridge, to interview Ms. Harris. They heard her preach in the huge Gothic Church of the Advocate in Northern Philadelphia. When Barbara Harris gave a tour of the church and its poor neighborhood the Rev. Chapman saw many buildings that were run down or boarded up and appeared burned out.

The small congregation enthusiastically took part in the service clapping and singing, led by a Gospel choir called "The Joyful Noise." The church is engaged in a feeding program that Ms. Harris reported feeds 3,000 men and women a year. It was at the Church of the Advocate that 11 women were ordained two years before the official acceptance of women to Holy Orders by General Convention in 1976. The Rev. Harris was present at that service.

The Rev. Chapman and Ms. Jean Howard, delegates to the convention from St. Elizabeth's were present at the election at St. Paul's Cathedral in Boston on Saturday. Barbara Harris was elected after eight ballots. The next day the Rev. Chapman reported to the congregation at St. Elizabeth's that the tiny mission chapel in Wilmington had been involved in a process and election that would go down in the history of the church.

Wilmington school news

West Intermediate School

There will be a P.A.C. meeting at the West Intermediate School Thursday evening, October 20, 1988, from 7 to 8:30 in the library. The agenda for the evening will be:

1. Organization
2. School Improvement Council
3. Fundraiser
4. Question and Answer Period.

If you have any items you would like to have placed on the agenda, please call the school at 658-6540.

Please try to attend the first meeting.

Interims are scheduled to be distributed October 14. They must be signed by a parent and returned to the school no later than October 17.

Michael Michalski, computer teacher at the West Intermediate School, has been doing more with the sixth grades than word processing and computer literacy. He has been sharing the experiences he had as a volunteer on an archeological dig in Cyprus. He has used slides that he took there to illustrate the methods archeologists use to reconstruct the past. This has fit in well with the sixth grade social studies curriculum that covers archeology and ancient history.

At the West - students are using computers in the classroom this fall. The seventh grade English classes are using computer software programs to assist in developing writing skills. The basic writing skills class is also learning how to rearrange sentences in order to quickly and easily create a proper paragraph. Foreign languages classes in both French and Spanish and science classes are also using computers to enrich instruction. Students can use the library computer to teach themselves how to type using a space invader speed test to improve their daily scores. Students continue to get basic computer understanding courses from Mr. Mike Michalski in the computer lab and take their new found skills to available machines throughout the school.

The library has added report searching capabilities by the use of a new micro-reader. The students can seek articles and find abstracts of those articles themselves during their free periods. Copies can be made for home study.

The new district project initiated by Mike Tikonoff, principal at the Wildwood School, provides on-line date retrieval capabilities in the library for students requiring a long bibliography of resources on topics they select. Students can learn how to search these bibliographic databases themselves! This is not a new technology, but certainly is a big step forward for the West Intermediate school.

Shawsheen Elementary School

The School Book Fair will be visiting the Shawsheen School Media Center October 14 through October 21. During this time, all children will enjoy a chance to browse and purchase paperback books.

The Book Fair will be open to parents Oct. 17 (3-3:30 p.m.), Oct. 18 (8:30-9 a.m.), and Oct. 20 (3-3:30 p.m.).

*****
This Thursday, Oct. 13, the first evening PAC meeting will be held in the school cafeteria from 7:30 to 9. Mr. Barry and Mrs. Fraser will speak on English as a second language. Though no babysitting will be available as it is during day meetings, it is hoped many parents will take advantage of this opportunity to get involved in the life of their child's school.

*****
Representatives of the Wilmington Fire Department will be visiting the Shawsheen School Friday, Oct. 14. Fire Safety demonstrations will be held in the various classrooms all in recognition of Fire Safety Month.

*****
Student Council representatives have been elected from grades four and five at the Shawsheen School. They are:

Scott Infantino (alternate Kevin Tildsley) from C21; Tracy Melzar (alt. Sean Farrell) from C26; Daniel Abbott (alt. Matthew Hardy) from C27; William Holloway (alt. Joseph Bamberg) from C28; and Kristen Butler (alternates Nicholas Athanassiou and David McLaughlin) from C29.

Also from the fifth grade: Kathryn Senesi (alt. Eric Morin) from C17; Lukis MacKie (alt. Leanne Harris) from C18; and Jason Mainini (alt. Jennifer Hunt) from C20.

For the next two weeks, candidates for student council president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer will campaign throughout the school. On Friday, Oct. 21, candidates will give speeches before the third, fourth and fifth grade classes. Elections will be held immediately afterward.

The Student Council plans many worthwhile projects and functions throughout the year, including their pencil sale at lunchtime. The Student Council is under the guidance of Assistant Principal Robert Arsenault.

Upcoming: The PAC's biggest fundraiser gets underway November 7. At that time students will be selling chocolate crunch candy bars to the public for $1.00. All profits go toward special programs and field trips to benefit the children.

Notable: Last year's fifth grade class enjoyed the Special DARE Program run through the Wilmington Police Dept. and Officer Bob Spencer. It was deemed a success by participating students and teachers alike.

Hope everyone circles their calendars for this year's Harvest Fair slated for November 5. It should be bigger and better than ever before.

Wildwood School

The following students were honored as Students of the Month for September at the Wildwood School:

The fundraiser will kickoff October 17. The holiday gift collection catalog contains many great gift ideas, wrapping paper, cards etc. We hope this will be a most successful event so that we may continue to provide the children with excellent educational programs, equipment and activities.

Shawsheen Tech

Thursday, October 27 is the date of the 19th annual open house at Shawsheen Tech. All 21 shops will be offering displays from 7 to 9 p.m. with students demonstrating vocational and technical skills.

Students, teachers and graduates will be available in both vocational and academic areas to answer questions about the school and its programs. Guidance counselors will be on hand to discuss career and college opportunities for students with a variety of backgrounds and interests who choose Shawsheen Tech.

Seventh and eighth graders and their parents are invited. Other interested residents are also welcome.

Sarah Callahan, data processing instructor and a member of the Open House Committee, said the evening is also important to Shawsheen ninth graders and their parents.

"Parents can tour, with their ninth grader, the shops their child is exploring," she said. In the spring, freshmen choose a vocational area in which to specialize for the next three years. "If parents visit the shops now, they will have a good overall picture, so they can assist their child with a choice in the spring."

Open house begins with an overview in the school cafeteria at 7 p.m. Late arrivals can see the presentation on videotape before beginning a tour. Visitors can pick up school maps for a self-guided tour or request a student guide to visit special areas of interest.

Both college bound and other computer buffs should stop in data processing where visitors can sit at computer terminals and activate a program that matches students and colleges.

For something different, those touring can stop at the air conditioning and refrigeration area to view a miniature ice rink. The Health Department will take blood pressures and give eye tests. When visitors go to cosmetology, they can take a chance on winning a "day of beauty," one of several door prizes available in the shop areas.

A special drawing, just for eighth graders and their parents will take place in the cafeteria.

School sports and activities will be represented through a diving competition and synchronized swimming demonstration at the pool; a project adventure demonstration in the gym; cheerleaders in person and on videotape; and students representing Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) who will distribute information about this skill and leadership organization.

Note: If you would like to see news of your school in print, please submit interesting news items to the Town Crier office by Monday evenings or call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696.

Stress management workshop at Regional Health Center

Are your neck and back stiff at the end of the day? Are you experiencing headaches more frequently? Or are you experiencing anxiety or frustration?

Everyone today in our modern, hectic world is under a certain amount of stress. Though stress can be positive and motivating, constant stress can be hazardous to one's health.

improving one's appearance in order to make a good first impression.

Lunch will be served after the morning programs. Menu will be: hero sandwiches, salad, juice and yogurt with toppings for dessert.

Following lunch, Mary Ann Breen, staff health educator will speak about making good nutrition taste good. Part of her program will be making a mock hero sandwich. The last program of the day will be aerobics led by Kathy Corey. Be sure to take comfortable clothes and rubber soled shoes for this workout. ## Relieve Hammer Toe Pain!

Hammer toes are small deformities that occur in the little joints of the toe. They are aggravated by shoe gear. The joint "buckles" upwards and rubs in the shoes. The rubbing irritates the skin and causes a painful swollen joint. Correction of this deformity can be simple releasing of the tendons, to releasing of the tendons in combination with removal of a small piece of bone.

Wilmington police news

The Wilmington police, in the past week responded to a total of 37 alarms from various sites, homes and businesses in Wilmington. The word is that all were false alarms.

There were two reports of stolen vehicles, two of suspicious activity, one trespassing complaint and two trailbike complaints. Two stolen vehicles were recovered.

Seven cases of vandalism were logged, and one case of fireworks. There were four instances where police gave service to people who had locked themselves out of a car or their home.

Christopher Moriello of Lowell was arrested last week in North Wilmington by Officer Buddy Hubby. Warrants had been issued by both the Lowell and Webster police departments for his arrest. He was released to officers from Lowell.

Thursday evening Officer Charley Fiore arrested Steven L. Ramsey, 20, of Dracut, after a computer check revealed he was wanted by a default warrant issued by the Woburn Court.

Three youths from North Andover were arrested Monday night by officers Tom Miller and Chris Neville, with the cooperation and assistance of Andover police officers. Daniel D. Penn, 17, and two juveniles were charged with unarmed robbery of three local kids.

After investigation the arrest was made, along the railroad tracks near the Lowell Junction at the end of Ballardvale Street. Three complaints of unarmed robbery were issued against each of the three youths.

George Allan steps down as water commissioner

There was a little party after the meeting of the Wilmington Water Commissioners, on October 6. There was an ice cream cake and Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski read an appreciative letter, written to George Allan, chairman.

George Allan had just completed 13 1/2 years as chairman of the Water & Sewer Commissioners. In those years the had been many changes, among them the construction of the first water treatment plant in the United States, designed to remove cancerous materials from the drinking water. Much progress has been made.

Allan is a vice president in one of the more prestigious engineering companies of New England. He served the town without pay, and was always careful to avoid "conflict of interest" situations.

To George Allan the big event of the meeting was a sort of joke. Thirteen and a half years ago the first subject discussed by the board was a Clinton Street argument. On October 6, the last discussion was again a Clinton Street argument. He found that to be very funny.

It was about 14 years ago that the Sylvester family of Clinton Street, newly moved in, wanted water service to their home. They had to pay for the installation of the water main because Clinton Street was unaccepted.

Afterward another family wanted to connect to that water main. The Sylvester family felt that the second family should share in the construction costs. There was a disagreement. In the course of events construction was started without any agreement about payment.

During the lunch hour break Mrs. Sylvester drove her car across the hole that had been dug by a bulldozer hoe. She stopped work completely.

There was a hot discussion in the next water commissioners meetings, and, eventually, the town council ruled that those people who had paid for the work had a right to expect that anyone else who wished to share the water should also be participants in paying the costs, inasmuch as Clinton Street, not being "accepted" was a private way.

It was a different argument in the last meeting. The Sylvester family was not involved.

A houselot facing on Roosevelt Road has two homes on it. The home nearest Roosevelt Road can get its water from the water main on the street. However that is not the case for the house behind it. There are laws against running water mains through private property. A proposal was made to run a water main up a street named Lincoln Avenue. No plan, it seems, or some such problem, has been made for the street.

That brought the problem to the water commissioners. "This," said Allan, "is where I came in."

No decision was made. The problem will again be discussed in the next meeting of the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners.

John D. McLellan is a fine person to know. A long time resident of River Road, Tewksbury, and now a resident of Nashua, New Hampshire, he graduated from the University of Toronto in 1921, at a time when Canadian college students were also officer cadets in the Canadian Army. However, John did not serve in the Army.

He emigrated to the United States, and soon got a job with the firm which was the predecessor of Raytheon, where he completed many years of service, before his retirement. He was also a lecturer at Northeastern University for 16 years.

It was John McLellan who advised Tewksbury's Ed Bowley on the way he should run a business, back about 25 years ago. Ed was running a scrap metal business, with a yearly income of about $150,000 gross. John showed Ed how to enlarge the business, and how to borrow money in order to pay for that enlargement. The results of the advice is the big Tewksbury Auto Parts yard, down off East Street.

But that was all private business. It was in another sense of business that John McLellan made his mark, and that was in Rotary.

The Rotary Club of Tewksbury was chartered on May 31, 1961, and John McLellan was there. In the 27 years since the charter John has served the club in every way possible - and that takes a lot of doing.

He served as president. He was (and still is) for many years the editor of the club bulletin, and the club historian. He has been very active in the scholarship programs of the club, and is a Paul Harris Fellow in Rotary Foundation. His life in Rotary has been a fulfillment of the Rotary slogan - "He profits most who serves the best."

John McLellan was 90 years old on October third. There was a birthday cake, but everyone, with the possible exception of John McLellan knew there was to be a big party in the Masonic Hall on October 9.

That party had about 60 guests. One of John's older brothers was present, as well as eight grandchildren.

Robert McLellan was there to lend his brother help on his 90th birthday. Robert, who is 93 lives in Toronto, Canada.

Not present was the older brother, the Rev. Charlie McLellan of London, Ontario, Canada, who is 94.

Beverly Froberg of Springfield, Virginia, and John III and Carolyn from Laurel, Maryland were among the grandchildren present.

The master of ceremonies was Tewksbury's Bailey Trull. A briefcase, well designed, was a present from Ed Bowley, and the Rotary Club of Tewksbury presented an armchair, with the Rotary Wheel decorating the backrest, a presentation by club President Elwood Wilson.

John D. McLellan, center, received a briefcase among other presents at his 90th birthday party on Saturday. Master of Ceremonies Bailey Trull (left) made the presentation, while Ed Bowley looked on.

Section 7 Planned Residential Development (PRD)

*7.1 Purpose - Planned Residential Development, allows by special permit of the Planning Board, an alternative pattern permitted in the residential districts, and must incorporate Section 9.1 (Inclusionary Housing Policy) of the Zoning Bylaw. Planned Residential Development is intended to encourage the preservation of significant land and water resources; to encourage more environmentally sensitive and cost-effective / energy-efficient residential land uses; to encourage a more diverse and affordable housing supply; and to enable the Town to require:

Carole S. Hamilton, chairperson
OS, 12, 19 Wilmington Planning Board

adherence to a comprehensive set of development plans in the granting of such special permit.

7.2 Planned Residential Development Standards

*7.2.1 Permitted Uses: Single family dwellings; attached or detached structures, provided that there shall be not more than six (6) dwelling units in any single structure; agriculture; and recreation facilities including clubhouses for exclusive use of PRD owners and residents.

*7.2.2 Minimum Tract Size - Planned Residential Developments shall be located upon a tract of land which has an area of not less than eight acres.

*7.2.3 Number of Lots or Dwelling Units: The number of lots or dwelling units permitted within any PRD shall not exceed the larger of the numbers obtained by applying either of the following subsections:

*7.2.3.1 The number of lots obtained by dividing the total area of the tract, exclusive of land situated within the Flood Plain Zone A shown on the most recent "Federal Emergency Management Association" maps or wetlands as defined in MGL Ch. 131 Sec. 40, "The Wetlands Protection Act" by the minimum standard lot size permitted, in section 9.1.3 of the Zoning Bylaw as applies to the zoning district(s) within which the tract is located.

*7.2.3.2 The number of lots under standard subdivision upon which a single family dwelling could be constructed in the residential district(s) within which the tract is located.

7.2.4 Dimensional regulations
*7.2.4.1 In the case of a Planned Residential Development consisting of lots for detached single family dwelling units, the individual house lots shall be not less than one-half the minimum lot size allowed in the district, except that no lot shall be less than 6,500 square feet.

*a) The minimum distance between structures shall be twenty feet.

*b) No building or structure shall be located within twenty feet of a public way or boundary line of the development tract, and such area shall form a continuous landscaped buffer.

*a) The minimum distance between structures shall be thirty feet.

*b) No building or parking or other paved area shall be located within twenty-five feet of a public way and fifty feet of a boundary line of the development tract, and such areas, except for road, walkway or utility crossings, shall provide a continuous landscaped buffer.

c) Other Regulations - To minimize departure from existing patterns of residential development, there shall be (1) no more than six attached dwelling units and no more than six parking spaces in any single structure; (2) no more than one unit shall be served by each building entrance; and (3) the maximum height of any structure shall not exceed two and one-half stories or 35 feet.

7.2.5 Streets and Utilities - All streets, sewers, drainage facilities and utilities shall be designed and constructed in compliance with the Town of Wilmington Subdivision Rules and Regulations. Special exceptions to the subdivision standards may be authorized by the Planning Board in granting a special permit hereunder provided the Board determines such exceptions are in the public interest and are not inconsistent with the purposes of Section 7.1.

7.2.6 Common Open Space

*7.2.6.1 Minimum Common Open Space: The minimum common open space shall be fifty (50) percent of the total area of a Planned Residential Development consisting of attached dwelling units and thirty-five (35) percent of the total area when consisting of lots for single family detached dwelling units. *b) A statement of the purpose for which the Common Open Space is intended to be used and the restrictions, if any, on its use and alienation.

It shall be provided that common charges are to be allocated among the dwelling owners in proportion to their ownership or beneficial interests in the corporation, non-profit organization or trust, and that each dwelling owner's share of the common charge shall be a lien against his real estate in the Planned Residential Development, which shall have priority over all other liens with the exception of municipal liens and mortgages of record, and the method by which such instrument or instruments shall be amended.

7.2.7 Limitation of Subdivision - No lot shown on a plan for which a Planned Residential Development permit is granted may be further subdivided, and a notation to this effect shall be placed on the plan of record which shall be recorded with the special permit.

5.4.2 Affordable units will be comparable with and indistinguishable from, market-rate units in terms of exterior appearance, and dispersed throughout the development.

5.4.3 The Planning Board shall require that affordable units be included in lots or dwelling units released for sale in the same percentage as required for the entire project as phased;

And further to see if the Town will vote to amend the Wilmington Zoning Bylaw by adding Section 9 "Inclusionary, Housing Policy" as follows:

SECTION 9 Inclusionary Housing Policy

9.1.1 Where an action of the Planning Board permits higher density, the owner or developer shall provide affordable housing units in accordance with Section 9.1.2. Those affordable units will be allocated as specified in Section 9.1.5 of this bylaw.

9.1.2 Schedule of Affordable Units

Percent Affordable Required	Criteria
20 percent	Developer provides all funding for affordable units

9.1.3 The density of any proposed development will meet the following minimum requirements

In Existing	In Existing
R-60 Zone	R-20 Zone
Area: 40,000 sq. ft.	13,000 sq. ft.
Frontage: 150'	100'
Depth: 150'	100'
Set Back: 40'	30'
Rear/Side Yard 20'	15'
Height: 35'	35'
Stories: 2 1/2	2 1/2

Hammerhead lots as defined in Section 5.3.4 of this bylaw will be acceptable.

If existing sewer line is within 1000 feet of proposed sub-division, the entire sub-division must be connected to sewer in accordance with the Town Sewer Master Plan.

9.1.4 The maximum annual increase allowed for a resale of an affordable housing unit is the original acquisition price plus an annual allowance for appreciation of value equal to the increase in the Consumer Price Index for the Boston area or the applicable regulations of the appropriate state of federal funding agency.

The Town shall monitor sales of all affordable units.

All units must be owner occupied with the exception of those units owned by the Wilmington Housing Authority.

9.1.5 The affordable units will be allotted in the following manner:

5% - Very low or low income units to be offered or donated to the Wilmington Housing Authority or to be purchased by the Wilmington Housing Authority.

40% - Very low or low income units to be purchased by eligible households.

55% - Moderate income units to be purchased by eligible households.

(Income requirements and sales restrictions are outlined in section 9.1.9)

If the Wilmington Housing Authority does not choose to purchase the full 5% allotted to them, then the developer shall increase the 40% of very low or low income units by the number of units not purchased by the Housing Authority.

After efforts to sell the type of housing units indicated above have proven fruitless, a developer shall request that the Town allow an amount comparable to the required affordable sales price of all affordable housing units not sold, be paid to the Town of Wilmington Affordable Housing Trust Fund. State or federal program requirements take precedence over this guideline if a state or federal program is utilized.

9.1.6 Building permits shall not be issued for the construction of any dwelling unit in the second 50% of the market rate dwelling units, in a specific phase until construction has begun on ALL the affordable housing units in that phase.

At the stage of the application to the Planning Board, the developer shall submit specific data on sales prices of affordable housing units, a calculation of affordability based on current economic data, all of which shall be incorporated in the special permit. Where the affordable housing units are to be constructed under a federal or state subsidy program, a letter of commitment from the subsidizing agency shall be included.

9.1.8 Inclusionary units will be comparable with and as nearly indistinguishable from, the market-rate units in terms of exterior appearance, and dispersed throughout the development.

Very low	Income	below 50% of Boston PMSA* median come
Low	Income	50 to 80% of Boston PMSA* median income
Moderate	Income	80 to 120% of Boston PMSA* median income

In determining qualifying incomes, the most recent data from the following source shall be used:

Median income for the Boston metropolitan area: As calculated by the Regional Economist, Boston Office, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

For proposals using state or federal programs the income eligibility requirements of various state and federal programs for low and moderate income housing may differ from the comprehensive plan definition and may be used instead.

9.1.10 The average sale price of all affordable units shall be no greater than 2.5 times the median income of a three person family as defined by the Regional Economist, Boston office, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development at the time of submission of definitive subdivision plans; or do anything in relation thereto.

Article 5: To see if the Town will vote to amend, delete or add, as the case may be, to the Wilmington Zoning Bylaw as follows:

Deli King Restaurant takes over in the old Nolan's location

by Christine Tighe

A new eating place to try on Route 38 in Tewksbury is the Deli King Restaurant. Situated at 885 Main Street where Nolan's Hearthside Restaurant used to stand, the Deli King is a cafeteria style restaurant which offers a wide variety of hot and cold plates. "We specialize in Greek, American, Mid-Eastern, and Italian cuisine, but it's mostly American," said Arthur Agganis, owner of the restaurant.

Agganis has been in the restaurant business for 20 years. His first restaurant was in Saugus, then Stonham and then in Boston on Commonwealth Avenue before coming to Tewksbury.

It was a good move, according to Agganis. The Deli King comprises a total of 6,000 square feet which is 2,000 more than Nolan's, which was almost demolished to make room for the new Deli King.

He also said that he is doing great business. "My customers tell me that the food and prices are excellent," he said.

In Agganis's opinion, Mousaka and Souvlaki are the favorite of most of his customers.

The Mousaka is an eggplant soufflé with ground beef and creme sauce on top. Souvlaki is marinated lamb cooked on the broiler and is served with salad and rice pilaf.

Deli King is open Monday through Saturday from 5:30 in the morning to ten at night. On Sunday they are open for breakfast only, from six o'clock in the morning to one o'clock in the afternoon, but due to the increasing popularity of his restaurant, Agganis said he may stay open longer on Sunday.

Proud in victory and defeat

One team can be proud in victory. The other can thrust out its chest just as far in defeat.

The Tewksbury Redmen sprinted past former Division II Super Bowl rival Bridgewater-Raynham, 18-0 Sunday afternoon two days after the Wilmington Wildcats hung tough with the big boys in a 14-0 defeat under the lights at Chelmsford High School.

"Wilmington has played a nice game," offered Redmen assistant coach Connie Barry as the Lions drove in for their final touchdown in the fourth quarter. The Wildcats' defense (sparked by Scott Tuxbury, Steve Killilea, Jason Oliver and John Rago to name a few) was rugged throughout, sacking Chelmsford quarterback Tom Caito five times in the first half before a Wilmington fumble led to a CHS score with less than a minute to go until halftime.

The Wildcats, behind sophomore quarterback Dennis Walsh, came out and moved the ball right down the field after taking the second half kickoff. The drive eventually died when Derek LeBlanc was dropped for an eight yard loss on a double reverse and a Walsh pass to tight end Jason Oliver was batted down in the endzone.

The Lions took the ball at their own 12 and moved 88 yards in six plays for an insurance touchdown. The Wildcats' defense wasn't finished yet however, as defensive back Tony DeLucia came up with an interception and a fumble recovery to further frustrate Chelmsford.

Forget that talk about Wilmington moving to a smaller league. This team can play. The coach can definitely coach. A point was proven Friday night at Chelmsford. This game was supposed to be a blowout that was over by halftime. This 0-4 Wilmington team proved something to themselves in defeat. This football team that dressed 28 players for Friday night's game can play with anyone.

Saturday the Wildcats host a small school that has fought the odds for many years to field a fine football team. The Dracut Middies are small (enrollment wise) and undefeated. The Wildcats are small and winless. School enrollments and won-loss records will mean nothing this Saturday.

"If we take this game, we could take off on a nice little streak," predicted longtime assistant Barry Friday night. The Tewksbury Redmen certainly were a blue streak Sunday afternoon in utilizing their superior team speed to blow by previously unbeaten Bridgewater-Raynham.

Senior quarterback Doug Boudreau (12-19, 133 yards) and receivers Tom Aylward (six catches, 51 yards), Chris Horgan (4-52) and Tom Bradley (1-20), beat the B-R secondary all day and the defense swarmed to the ball as well, creating a fumble and interceptions by Bradley and Keith Sullivan.

The Redmen scored their touchdowns on a six yard Boudreau pass to Aylward, an electrifying 65 yard punt return for a TD by Horgan and a John Miller 18 yard burst up the middle in the third quarter.

The Redmen compiled 216 yards to B-R's 86. No contest against a very good (and very big) opponent. Tewksbury can defeat Chelmsford Saturday if it matches this effort offensively and defensively.

Blocking for LeBlanc

Wilmington running back Derek LeBlanc roars behind a block thrown by Steve Killilea (44) and additional help from John Rago (53) in the third quarter of Friday night's 14-0 loss at Chelmsford.

Looking for some points

Wildcat coach Ed Harrison looks to the endzone for points that never came Friday night. The WHS defense played another fine game in holding an explosive Chelmsford team to 14 points.

More solid defense

Todd Brisbois (86) and Steve Killilea (44) surround a Chelmsford player late in Friday's MVC game. The WHS defense will face another test when it tangles with the unbeaten Dracut Middies Saturday afternoon.

hogs

Tewksbury's offensive line of (l-r) Hugh Fitzpatrick, Scott Blades, Arthur Piccolo and Elder Bettencourt helped push the Redmen to an 18-0 victory over Bridgewater-Raynham.

TMHS cross country

Redmen girls roll again

The Tewksbury High School girls' cross country team continued its winning ways last week in grand fashion.

On Saturday the team traveled to Bedford to compete against several other schools in the Bedford Invitational. Wearing their traditional bright red uniforms, the Tewksbury runners stole the show, placing five runners in the top nine.

Tewksbury finished the meet with 34 points, way ahead of runners-up Lincoln-Sudbury (56) and St. Bernard's (92). This was Tewksbury's second Bedford Invitational victory in a row.

On Wednesday, Andover came to town and got run over by the big red machine on the TMHS home course. Wendy Fowler led the way with a new course record. She was followed closely by Chrissy Juskiewicz, this year's team captain, Jennifer Harmon, Jessica Hupper, Maureen Forsyth and Kara Zajac.

Tewksbury claimed the top six places and placed a total of nine runners ahead of Andover's fifth competitor.

The team depth that this year's squad is demonstrating will carry them a long way. Already they have a five wins and no loss record as they head this week for Chelmsford and a very tough contest with Chelmsford and Haverhill.

WINDJAMMING - TALL SHIPS TO FARAWAY PLACES

Does the thought of boarding a tall ship to a remote island sound like your kind of vacation... then Windjamming is for you.

A Windjammer cruise is a unique sailing vacation that features swimming, snorkeling, sunning and sunsets. You're not merely a passenger, you're part of a small group of fun-loving people where you'll get to know everyone on board.

Accommodations are not luxurious, tend to be small, but are air conditioned and have private toilets and showers. Dress for an entire cruise requires nothing more than a bathing suit and sandals.

Windjamming is not for everyone, including those who seek luxury accommodations, pampered service, gambling, and shopping in port. It is more for people who are looking for an adventure not a conventional cruise.

Based in ports such as St. Thomas, Tortola, St. Maarten and others, Windjammers offer 6 or 13 day itineraries to a variety of remote Caribbean islands.

If informality and camaraderie and the feeling of being totally relaxed is what you're looking for - think Windjamming and come in to American Traveller's new Cruise Corner division, the area specialist today or call us at 657-5877. MAIN OFFICE

Wilmington Youth Soccer highlights

Most Wilmington Youth Soccer games were cancelled this past Saturday with the sudden reminder of winter and cold rainy conditions. With the second half of the season at hand there are a few important announcements.

The end of the season annual meeting will be held Monday, Nov. 7 at 7:30 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall. This is an important meeting for all coaches and parents to discuss the soccer season and to elect next year's board of directors. Any questions, problems, or ideas should be taken up at this meeting. Any person interested in a board of director position should contact the nominating committee chairman Barry Cahill at 657-4206.

Another important date to mark on your calendars is the fall scholarship dance. This year the dance will be held Friday, Nov. 11 at Villanova Hall (next to St. Thomas). Cost is $15 per couple and can be purchased at the trailer.

There may be some openings for the spring travel teams. Any soccer player interested in playing on a spring travel team should sign-up at the trailer. Any players interested in an under 19 spring travel team or under 16, please contact Pres. John DeMarco, 658-5207 or travel team coordinator Andy Armata, 658-2281.

Girls under 16

The Wilmington girls U-16 travel team ended the first half of the fall 1988 campaign with a split of the first four games in a tough Division 1 Conference which includes teams from perennial powerhouses such as Medford, Lowell, Andover and Chelmsford.

In game one, the girls travelled to play the Andover II team and won, 3-0.

Considering the competition, this was a surprisingly one-sided game controlled by the Wilmington girls and played mostly in the Andover zone. As an indication of the strong Wilmington play, Andover got only three shots on the Wilmington goal in the first half, and six in the second.

In the first half Wilmington forwards Jennifer April, Gina DeSantis, Kara Scalsesse, Stacy LaCorcia, Kim Russo and Michelle Deveau had a field day as they bombarded the Andover goal with many shots and scored two goals. The goals were scored by Gina DeSantis and Kara Scalsesse.

The second half pressure on the Andover goal was even more intense, but the hard working Wilmington girls could only connect for one more goal, a rocket shot by Jennifer April.

The defensive efforts of the halfbacks and fullbacks during the entire game was tremendous, as they kept Andover couped up in their zone for most of the game.

Halfbacks Ginny Cosgrove, Joy Michaud and Toby Kenny played very well.

Fullbacks Tina Kelly, Nicole Bouchie and Ann Marie Barletta also played strong games. Katy Palm played a very strong game as sweeper as she constantly reversed most Andover thrusts into Wilmington territory.

Stacey Ouellette and Nicole Bouchie shared the goaltending duties, Stacey in the first half and Nicole in the second.

In game two, the Wilmington girls hosted Lowell at home, 4-0. After the easy win over Andover II, this game brought the Wilmington girls back to reality as they, in turn, were roughed up by a very strong Lowell team.

The Wilmington girls couldn't get untracked in this game, as Lowell kept them bottled up in their own end, much as Wilmington had done to Andover in the first game.

Although Lowell controlled the play in the first half, they could score only one goal despite blasting 20 shots on the Wilmington goal.

The low score was a tribute to the hustle of the beleaguered fullback corps as Nicole Bouchie, Tina Kelly and Ann Marie Barletta feverishly scrambled to clear the ball from the goal area.

The other stars of this near shutout were Katy Palm at sweeper, and Stacey Ouellette who made several spectacular saves in goal to keep her teammates in the game.

The onslaught continued in the second half, as Lowell kept the pressure on the Wilmington goal and eventually wore the defense down and added three more goals to their lead, for a final of 4-0.

Halfbacks Kara Scalsesse, Joy Michaud and forwards Gina DiSantis, Jennifer April, Kim Russo, Jennifer Rago and Stacey LaCorcia all played well in this frustrating loss.

In game three, the Wilmington girls hosted Chelmsford and won, 4-2. This game started out as a cakewalk, as Wilmington took a 3-0 lead in the first half, but got close as Chelmsford scored two goals in the second on the over confident Wilmington girls who eventually scored an insurance goal to close out the scoring and own the game.

The first half was all Wilmington, as the forwards and halfbacks put constant pressure on the Chelmsford goal and struck for three goals.

The scoring parade was led by Gina DeSantis who scored two and Ginny Cosgrove who scored one. The goals came in rapid succession in the early part of the period, as Gina notched the first, a header on a feed from Ginny C. The second was an unassisted shot by Ginny C. and the third was also an unassisted shot by Gina D.

Although Wilmington forwards Kara Scalsesse, Jennifer April, Julie Robinson and Jennifer Rago also had good scoring opportunities, no one could connect. The second half was a complete reversal of the first, as Chelmsford controlled the game and outshot Wilmington by a 3-1 ratio. In fact, if it weren't for some outstanding saves in goal by Stacey Ouellette, and a strong effort by a "re-awakened" defense, sweeper Katy Palm and fullbacks Tina Kelly, Nicole Bouchie, Marissa Volpe and Ann Marie Barletta, the game could have been stolen by Chelmsford.

Forwards Kim Russo and Julie Robinson also helped by collaborating on an insurance goal to ice the game in the waning minutes of the contest. Kim scored the goal on a nice crossing pass from Julie.

Game four was a battle in Medford, where the Wilmington girls lost, 4-0 in a very rugged game. Once again the Wilmington girls ran into a very strong, but unnecessarily physical team.

The first half saw Medford bolt out to a quick 2-0 lead in near hurricane conditions. The Wilmington girls were kept pinned in their own end for most of the half by the gale force winds and the rough, uncontrolled play of the Medford team.

In the second half neither the winds nor the rough play by Medford subsided, as both continued unchecked. Despite these poor conditions the Wilmington girls continued to play good hard "clean" soccer. However, the unrelenting Medford style paid off, as they scored two more goals for a final of 4-0.

As in the Lowell game, the Wilmington defense once again was severely tested, as Medford pressured them for a 3-1 shots on goal advantage, but sweeper Kathy Palm, and fullbacks Nicole Bouchie, Tina Kelly and Ann Marie Barletta hustled to keep the score down.

Once again, Stacey Ouellette was outstanding in goal, as she made some tough saves in both halves. Halfbacks Ginny Cosgrove, Jennifer April, Toby Kenny and Joy Michaud also played strong games, and Marissa Volpe who played both at fullback and halfback, played a great game, particularly at halfback.

Travel team

Girls under 14

Traveling team seasons generally run in two year cycles. Some say you judge the success of a team's season by comparing it with the record of two years earlier. If that is true, then the girls' under 14 team has already had a successful season.

In the fall of 1986 this team lost nine of 10 games, usually by five or six goal margins. In contrast, the girls are now sporting a 3-0-1 record after a 3-3 tie with Tewksbury, a 4-1 win over Waltham and victories over two Andover teams by 3-1 and 1-0 scores.

Why has this team improved so dramatically? There are two simple reasons. First of all, the girls who played two years ago have improved their skills considerably. Secondly, some very talented girls have joined the club. All the players have blended in well to develop a very competitive squad.

The high scoring forwards are Shannon Jepson, Alyssa Sellers, Emily Dehoff, Heather Pillsbury, Jill Murphy and Alyssa Falzone.

The hard working midfielders are Rebecca Bouchie, Adrienne Fay, Laura DeMarco, Jaime Forgett, Kim Laquidara and Lisa DiPerri. And the powerful fullbacks are Jennifer MacDonald, Lynette Sbrano, Sarah Callahan, Erin Gilhooly and Jennifer Murray.

Alyssa Falzone, Rebecca Bouchie, Alyssa Sellers and Kim Laquidara have also provided the team with excellent goaltending.

Andover Ski Club

The Andover Ski Club is looking for interested young skiers from Andover and surrounding towns. It is an instructional program for boys and girls ages four through high school. The club is an organization of families dedicated to providing competitive skiing to the boys and girls in a fun and supportive atmosphere.

The club offers two means of competition: The Buddy Werner program and the Andover / Bradford / Merrimack Valley (ABM) program. Many children participate in both programs and others chose one or the other.

The Buddy Werner Program is a league where the emphasis is placed on the fun of ski racing. All levels of ability are encouraged to participate and the club competes against five other Buddy Werner programs in Eastern Massachusetts. Races, which are held on Sundays, take place at Prospect Hill in Waltham, Nashoba Valley in Westboro, and at Bradford Hill in Haverhill.

ABM has pooled its resources to maintain the highest quality coaching in the area. There are two nights of on-hill coaching to which all Andover Club members are invited. In addition, the ABM coaches run the Saturday races. The Andover Ski Club provides separate coaches to supervise the Buddy Werner Sunday races.

Both leagues divide the competition by sex and age levels. The divisions are seven and under; eight and nine; 10 and 11; 12 and

Outdoors column

Bright leaves, exploding trees

by Bill Conlon
Every autumn, the New England landscape is splashed with color, but few people realize just why.

Other parts of the U.S. have fall displays -- naturally, since they have trees too -- but New England has the thickest and most varied hardwood forests in the nation. In Utah, for instance, the mountains turn rusty brown. Not quite the same thing.

What happens to the leaves is simple. Deciduous trees use leaves to turn sunlight into food, through chlorophyll, but you learned that in school, hopefully. But those same leaves are also full of water, and that's dangerous to the tree.

If a tree stayed full of sap during the winter freeze, it would explode. Water expands when it freezes, and tree sap is almost entirely of water. And yes, trees occasionally explode in winter.

When the bizarre "winter thaw" rolls around in late January, some trees have been known to start moving sap into the branches, being fooled by the warm weather into thinking that spring had arrived. When the freeze returns a few days later, the sap freezes and expands, and the trunk of the tree pops from the sudden pressure. Such a strong winter thaw is unusual, but it does happen.

Incidentally, scientists still don't know what causes the winter thaw. It's a New England peculiarity.

So, the trees right now are getting ready for winter by shutting down their leaves, and moving all the sap down to the roots. The leaves, now cut off from their water supply, are busy drying out and dying, and piling up on your lawn.

The color was there all the time. When the leaves dry out, though, the hidden colors come to life.

But a few weather factors can spell the difference between a wild, spectacular autumn display in New England, or just a brief splash of color before the drab brown of November sets in.

The best display of foliage in the past few years was in 1986, when the weather factors were perfect.

A cold snap is needed to start the process. The trees sense the cold and start shutting down, bringing the colors out. Different trees shut down at different times, but the 1986 cold snap was hard enough to send the message far and wide. This year has seen fits and starts on the thermometer, and some trees still aren't changing yet.

Next on the list is clear weather. Sunlight brings out the color of the leaves better, but this year we've had a lot of cloudiness, which gives the leaves a faded look. Hopefully we'll see enough sunlight to perk up the display before it ends.

Finally, we can't have any rain or high winds. The foliage is delicate, and a pounding rain will strip the color from the trees in no time. We've had more than enough rain and wind this fall, and the leaves are showing it. Some spots this year are superb, others so-so, and some trees are downright bare. Weird.

Though it isn't perfect, we are enjoying the annual colors in the foliage this year. Enjoy it while it lasts. Take a hike down a dirt road if you can find one, or jockey with the other "leaf peepers" on a drive through New Hampshire.

In a few short weeks, all of the confetti will fall to the ground. The oaks will be the last to shed, as always, and then it's over for 1988.

Winter is on the way, and the trees are giving us all the warning they can.
Brace yourself.

- Tackle Box -

The state is stocking trout, but the trucks will also be delivering the annual shipments of pheasants, too, in time for next Thursday's opener. The only seasons open now are for woodcock, grouse (partridge) and squirrels on the far side of the state. Opening this week will be duck in the western zones, but the bulk of the small game will come under the gun starting October 20.

The New England Aquarium has an interesting program starting this Friday, October 14. On Fridays from 4 to 8 p.m., admission to the Aquarium will be free to those ages 16 and up. So instead of jostling a bunch of kidlings to see the show, the grown-ups will now have a quiet time all their own.

Local fishing is decidedly slower than it was even a month ago. Bass aren't hitting anything very hard, and a subtle touch is required to detect their light pick-ups. Still, the Greater Lowell Fly Fishers have a members-only bass derby set for this Sunday on Lake Mascuppic, from 7:30 a.m. to half past noon.

It's almost deer season. Do you know where your shotgun slugs are hitting? Time for target practice.

Wildcat avoids Lion

Wildcat quarterback Dennis Walsh avoids this high flying Lion Friday night.

Cross country (from page 18)

The Tewksbury boys' team, although small in numbers, has been very competitive all season, and never more so than against Andover.

Ben Nichols, Tim Martin and Jeff Parsons ran as a tight group and grabbed places three through five. Tom Hooper ran a good race to place seventh and Jim O'Callaghan cut almost two minutes off his previous best time to grab ninth ahead of Andover's fifth runner. It was a great team effort, but the numbers came up just one point shy of victory.

Thus, the boys team record stands at two wins and three losses. However, their steady improvement, and the potential return of Kevin Kelley to the lineup, offers real hope that the team will have some solid accomplishments in the last half of the season - perhaps at the State Meet.

BETH ANDERSON straightens "Melanie's" shirt as she looks over the five dolls she recently created for use in Reading's Understanding Handicaps program. "We were in the library last week," she says, "and there was a little girl who looked just like the one on the right." Fabric Town of Reading donated the material and stuffing for each doll.

A very creative lady

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

Beth Anderson of Reading is as comfortable with burlap as with silk, as skillful with a hammer as with a sewing machine, as adept with house paint as with oil paint.

Remodeling and wood-working; doll houses, dioramas and dolls; quilts, T-shirts, portraits, and textbook covers - she can reproduce anything with originality and flair; design what you may only dream; create wonders from within.

She applies talent and imagination with equal competence to her children's clothing, gifts for friends, brochures, logos, and teddy bears.

She's unfailingly cheerful, optimistic, energetic, generous, perceptive, even-tempered, softspoken, and perfect to carpool with. She displays quick humor and Yankee common sense, is into her 10th year of aerobic dancing three times a week, and doesn't drink coffee. She probably bakes bread from scratch.

It's disgusting. What would you think if someone phoned you and announced "my daughter was born two hours ago and I've already had a shower, a walk and dinner - I'll be back in the carpool in a few days"? Or appeared at your door with a baby dressed in the most incredible NASA snowsuit you'd ever seen, years before any were on the market. Or labeled her children's totebags and jackets in magic marker ... and exquisite calligraphy.

It's disgusting, all right. Take her attitude. When friends of local high school track star Gregg Duffy decided to do something special for him at the end of his senior year, they approached her. "Originally, the guys were going to try something themselves so I loaned them my Raggedy Andy pattern and told them how," she says. "They came back with the pattern and said, 'We'll pay you. We'll pay you.'"

"But I had a lot of fabric scraps around so I told them to just get me a couple of bags of stuffing." The finished doll was a replica of Duffy complete with long legs, "authentic" Reading track uniform and his signature, lime green Nikes.

Anderson happened to have all those scraps handy partly because of the quilts. She has already volunteered to work on one for Reading's 350th anniversary celebration. "I do quilts anyway," she says. "And that sounds like a really fun thing."

Of course, she doesn't just "do" quilts. "I always make them as gifts," she says. "If it's a baby present and the baby's name is in a nursery rhyme, I illustrate that rhyme in cloth."

"For my nephew Billy, I had a little boy running down a hill and you can see, off in the distance, more hills and different crops in different greens. Our house was in there, very tiny. It looked like an aerial view of a farm," she says. "And then in a semicircle over the top, I stitched 'Oh where have you been Billy boy, Billy boy?' I do everything by sewing machine because I don't have the patience to do handwork."

She may say she's not patient - but her works belie that statement. She calls herself artist, not teacher - yet she teaches constantly by example.

Take the Killam School mascot: by vote of the kids, a koala; by execution, an Anderson. "It's about four feet tall, about the size of a first grader," she says. "I don't know how much it weighs but I kept put-

Part II - Derek Sanderson

Questions and answers on drugs

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"Cocaine is not gross," says former Boston Bruin Derek Sanderson in his message to middle schoolers. "Nobody makes you take drugs."

"Look at the people who take them. Pity the people. Feel sorry for them. They're going nowhere."

Sanderson came to Reading's Coolidge Middle School last week with an agenda. He spoke his piece on drugs and alcohol and opened himself up to questions.

Thousands of area youngsters are being given a similar opportunity to interview Sanderson through the Browning-Ferris Industries' drug awareness program, and he speaks directly to their concerns, every single time.

"How did you start on drugs?" ask the Coolidge kids.

"After a while, six, 10, 15 beers don't work," answers Sanderson. "Vodka is quicker but then you get hung over, sick, you don't feel good. After a while that doesn't work, so you try grass. Later, your logic is gone. With marijuana, at least you're not hung over."

"Did you ever watch an older brother or sister use?" they ask.

"No, but of the 14 people I hung out with when I was 19, during my third or fourth year in Boston, six are dead, five are in rehabilitation hospitals or Alcoholics Anonymous. Three I don't know about," he says.

SANDERSON

From S-1

"I thought it was okay because they were doing it and when you see a friend, you think there's no reason not to. I was so full of fear. I wanted to belong. Drugs made me feel better. If you're doing drugs and you're a good kid, then I should, too."

"Grass didn't work the first two times I tried it," he continues. "Cocaine worked the second time I tried it and I wanted it every day. I was trying to live a better world through chemistry instead of dealing with life head-on."

"Drinking is illegal 'til a certain age. Alcohol is bad for you 'til you're old enough to make the stupid decision to drink it. The alcohol companies set you up with advertisements so you're primed and ready when you're older. It's a poison and an anesthetic. Look for the skull and crossbones hidden in the advertisements."

"Why is it legal?" asks one youngster.

"We know it's a poison, a drug and an anesthetic. Why do we let it be legal? That's a problem adults have to solve. You kids just have to stay away from it," answers Sanderson.

"A drug will fool you, change your attitude, destroy you. You'll think it works forever, and it doesn't."

"How do you know where to get it?" asks a kid.

"It's a way of life. Some parents are giving it to kids. A lot starts in the medicine cabinet. You can find a drug - it's easy enough to do."

"How did the program make you stop doing drugs?"

"Alcoholics Anonymous has a 12-step procedure to live by. That, and a little faith," he says. "I'm 42. I got sober at 34. The first time Bobby Orr pulled me into a detox center, I was using alcohol and addicted to 11 different drugs. I didn't know how that could be possible - I was only using two or three."

"When I got out of the hospital, I thought I must have been the mixture so I tried 'only beer,' then 'only vodka.' A drug is a drug. I struggled through 13 detox's and then I turned my faith over to a higher power."

"Is smoking a drug?"

"Yes. Don't ask me if I smoke. I will quit."

"Did anyone suspect you were using drugs? How could you be a professional athlete and perform?" they wonder.

"As a druggie, you know how to hide it. You do them and stay out 'til the effect wears off. You get caught when you're in the 'I need it' stage."

"I only drank beer in Boston. I didn't play drunk or drink on the day of the game. Later, I drank so much the night before that I never sobered up. I did drugs in the summer. Marijuana stays in the system 90 days, cocaine for 72 hours."

"When I was injured and in the hospital, they ran blood tests and found steroids, cocaine and amphetamines."

"Legalizing drugs has got to be the most asinine thing this country's ever come up with."

Who are these people who want to do that? Drugs could be advertised like alcohol, and this whole country would be finished. Why don't judges sentence drug dealers? Eighty-four percent of all crimes in this country are alcohol or drug-related.

"In 1967, Krushchev said he would destroy this whole country without firing a shot. Ninety-six percent of all illegal drugs in this country come from Soviet-controlled countries."

"You gotta' pass on drugs."

"But if beer, alcohol and vodka are drugs, why do they sell them?" The kids are trying to pursue this logically.

"The Budweiser, Smirnoff and Miller families are very powerful. They make a ton of money off you if you're drinking. They don't make a dime if no one drinks," says Sanderson, talking prohibition, organized crime, psychologists, and psychology. "After a hard day's work, I deserve a couple."

"A lot of people can drink but there are 25 million American alcoholics. The families of 106 million Americans are directly affected by alcoholism.

"My wife can have a glass of wine and a cup of coffee. I hate her for it. If I have one glass of wine, I gotta' have two. Then I need the whole bottle."

"What's this mixed message?" he continues. "If 300 people come out of a nightclub at 3 a.m., the police could make a lot more arrests than they do. Alcohol is the most abused drug in this country. The number one killer of teenagers in America is impaired driving - and alcohol is still legal."

"When you were high before, what did alcohol do to you?"

"The effect depends on the amounts. But the first beer has the same effect as the 10th. It suppresses feeling and emotion and nullifies fear. Vodka speeds circulation and affects the heart. Bourbon affects the brain, Scotch the pancreas. They all attack the liver," says Sanderson.

"They numb your throat and your insides. You don't feel or care or learn. You stay the way you are and you're finished."

"Who started you on drugs?"

"Me."

ting stuffing in and more stuffing. I never thought I'd fill that thing up.

"I went into the school while I was working on it and some of the classes came by," she continues. "We thought it was a good idea because kids think in terms of going to the store and buying. I think a lot of them hadn't seen a sewing machine before."

She also managed a three by four foot wall-hanging of the koala for the media center; the koala design used throughout the school; and the koala silkscreen which she personally transferred to 600 Killam T-shirts.

You'd think she'd never want to see another T-shirt again. But when she designed the booklet for her class's 25th reunion at Lynnfield High last year, it was simple enough to turn the cover into a silkscreen. Everyone who came to the reunion received a blue and gold T-shirt, courtesy of classmate Beth Moreton Anderson, whose parents, Louise and Bill, still live in Lynnfield in the house where she grew up.

"You never really know your house until you see it with its skin off," says Anderson, referring to her present home built in 1896, two years younger than and a mirror image of Reading's historic Parker Tavern. "There was a question at one point about whether our house was originally a half house. It wasn't - we took the clapboards off and it's all the same across. Originally, the house was just a post and beam frame and now we can see where the windows used to be. There's one board from the bottom of the house all the way up - like they cut the tree down just to fit.

"The good thing about living in an old house is there's always something to do," she continues. "The bad thing is you never get any new things done because you have to do the old ones first."

She and husband Bruce, a free-lance photographer, were thinking of opening up the ceiling in the kitchen and putting skylights in but they didn't know how that would look - so she whipped up a half inch scale model of their house. "Originally, it was just a foam core model to see what would work," she says. "But then I started cutting little squares for cabinets, and then I got carried away."

The house is not exactly a regulation doll house - the top comes off so you can see the structure. It is a perfect teaching tool so Anderson takes it into third grade classes sometimes, before they visit the Parker Tavern "to show them things to look for when they get there."

If you happen to be in the Reading library in December and you glance at the diorama of Christmas in the Anderson home, you see the mandatory fireplace, tree and kids, a four-year-old and her 18-month-old sister.

If you look more closely into the tiny faces, you recognize Sara Anderson, now 12½ and Alissa, nine this week. Six-year-old Ross wants to know why he's not part of that scene but he doesn't really complain all that much - after all, he's the only one in the family and in his school with an official Killam koala backpack.

"I did the Christmas scene on a one inch to one foot scale mainly because Bruce had photographed a miniatures catalog," says Beth, "and I got 50 percent off. They make some beautiful things for miniatures if you're building them. The windows have glass and lines, and go up and down. I already had the windows - that's why I did it."

She almost said she didn't do windows - but that would have been wrong. When she works to a half inch scale, she merely needs acetate, white paint, a ruling pen, tracing paper, a drawing board - and she's got them made.

Same sort of thing happened with one of the textbook covers she does for Addison-Wesley. An old map would have been perfect to illustrate the American history text cover but the one finally located would have cost $1,500, and the owner really didn't want a push pin flag stuck into his antique.

No problem. "I drew that map," says Anderson. "I xeroxed it, copied it on the light table and then actually burned the edge. I was hesitant because if you went too far, you lost all that work."

Came a book called "Made in America," the tale of eight great all-American inventions, and Anderson took cloth, clay, fur, and stuffing to soft-sculpture a television set, a Coca Cola bottle, a McDonald's hamburger and King Kong wearing levis - to be photographed for the cover.

Disgusting, right? Anderson graduated from Rhode Island School of Design with a BFA in Apparel Design. She worked for Addison-Wesley for seven years before she began free-lancing, and has lived in Reading for 17 years. This summer, she took a portrait painting course at the Museum of Fine Arts.

"They say that whenever you do a portrait from a photograph, it always looks like the photograph," she says. "If you're doing it in person, you're not seeing just one view. A good portrait sometimes looks more like the person than the person because your two eyes see two different views at the same time."

"The course was wonderful. We had models who sat still for three hours at a time and didn't complain."

"I'm going to take portrait painting again. It's my favorite thing to do," she continues. "To me, the nicest way to spend an afternoon is to just take the paint box and paint something. I just totally lose any relationship with time. The results aren't always fantastic but it is really so much fun."

Anderson's work can be seen throughout Reading on brochures for everything from Creative Arts to after-school programs. As a volunteer for Understanding Handicaps, she has taught units on physical limitations and invisible handicaps - which brings us to her latest accomplishment.

"I call this one 'Melanie,'" she says of the doll, a child's size one, almond eyes, black ponytails, black stretch pants, dark and light purple striped socks. The sneakers alone - layer upon layer of white, magenta, gray, hot pink, purple - are a joy to behold.

A living doll? Almost.

"These dolls all have seizure disorders," says Anderson. "When a little buzzer or red light comes on during this exercise, they will all have seizures at the same time. The kids have to make sure the 'child' doesn't have anything very tight around his neck. All the dolls will have to be unbuttoned or unzipped at the neck, and the heads all turned to the side."

"The children used to pair off and take turns on each other but they got too silly and obnoxious," she continues. "They'd been listening to something kind of scary for about 20 minutes and they'd seen a filmstrip of somebody having a seizure."

"I built the shoes on - I figured they'd just get lost in the schools. Fabric Town donated the fabric and stuffing for all the dolls," she says. "I've been making dolls for years since I was a kid and I never grew up. I make teddy bears, too." Jointed.

That attitude of hers is irrepressible. Four of the dolls are for Reading. The blond, blue-eyed boy who resembles her son Ross is for an understanding handicaps program outside Reading. "I don't even know who this is for," says

Anderson. "When the subject first came up, they mentioned that 'Timmy' was worn out and that this woman needed another doll."

"When you get the assembly line going, it doesn't make a whole lot of difference. It was just as easy to make five as four," she adds.

No one even asked Anderson to make four - let alone five - magnificent dolls. "I was working on this unit," she says, "and Sonja Griffith, who teaches the section on seizure disorders, had a worn out Raggedy Andy doll."

"I said, 'Hey, I could make some dolls.'"

Disgusting, isn't it?

SAT prep course in Wakefield

A new and different type of S.A.T. preparation course is under way in Wakefield. This course is designed to be given Saturday from 9 to 4 p.m. and Monday night from 7 to 10 p.m. before each S.A.T. and is structured around students who don't want to sign up for a six or eight week course or who are on a tight budget.

John Blois, who is teaching the course and has both high school and college level teaching experience, says that up to 50 percent of questions that students miss are because of unfamiliarity with the test, nervousness, or a feeling of being overwhelmed. Those questions are not missed because of a lack of aptitude.

The main aim is, therefore, to make students comfortable with the S.A.T.'s. To do this, students take an actual S.A.T. test. John also covers every section of the S.A.T.'s and includes strategies and insights to help increase scores.

For more information on the upcoming course for the November 5 S.A.T.'s, call 1-685-1446 evenings.

TEWKSBURY — Thousands turned out to celebrate Tewksbury's first homecoming day recently. The 18th Army Band, a pancake breakfast, a softball game between the over-the-hill gang (of town celebrities) and the state police (a scratch team), rock bands - everyone had a blast.

In fact, participants so hated to leave that they're talking about making it a three-day event next year.

WOBURN — After "20 years in the talking stages," Woburn's new $6 million police station on Harrison Avenue is now in the making. Almost. The contract for construction was recently officially awarded to Wellesley's Wellesley Corporation.

STONEHAM — "You have to be willing to take risks and ask to do new and different things that you might not get paid for," says Barbara Douglass, member of the Stoneham High Class of '68 and newly appointed Dean at City College in San Diego.

The youngest associate dean in the district when she was appointed to that position eight years ago, she feels that promoting from within has become a priority in some businesses and that "if you look at demographics," the average age of managers is going up, they will have to retire and "somebody has got to replace them."

LYNNFIELD — The "Town of Whitewater, incorporated in 1862": that's Lynnfield's alias in the movie "American Bullit."

NORTH READING — To help offset the cost of taking the Hillview Country Club by eminent domain earlier this year, the state has issued $1.5 million to North Reading.

The funds will be used to acquire the 141-acre club for regional recreation and golf, and for the protection of the

Bachelor to be at Melrose Jazz Festival

Many people locally know Dr. Robert E. Bachelder as the recently retired Associate Superintendent of Schools in Melrose — a post he left the summer of 1988 after 30 years in the school system.

What some people fail to realize is that this is the same Bob Bachelder who for nine years delighted crowds at the famous Totem Pole Ballroom in Newton, fronting a 16-piece orchestra which at the time was perhaps the best known swing and dance band in New England.

Nor do some people make the connection that this is the same Bob Bachelder whose small combo, for the past three years, has been playing to raves at the swank Bay Tower Room in Boston.

Bob and his specially selected Melrose Swing Aggregation will be featured performers at the inaugural Melrose Jazz Festival, Sunday, October 16 at Trinity Church, the corner of West Emerson and Tremont streets.

The Festival runs from noon to 9 p.m. — with Bob's swinging group appearing between 2 and 4 p.m. in the afternoon.

Sponsored by the Melrose Arts Council, with grants from the Musicians Performance Trust (Local 9), the Festival is free of charge and open to all. Refreshments and sale items, including specially-designed Festival T-shirts, will be available all day.

Bachelder, a resident of Reading, began his musical career as a drummer when he was 15 years old, playing with local dance and jazz bands. After discharge from the Army Air Force, he returned to drumming with the Freddie Sateriale Dance Band and from there went on to composing and arranging after enrolling in

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

October 12 is Columbus Day. Here are a few facts about Columbus that you didn't learn in school. He started off from Spain with four ships, not three. One of the ships was lost - it went over the edge (the world was "flat" at that time); he finished the first EPA Economy Run traveling over 2,000 miles with only three "galleons." Columbus and his crew were getting discouraged when a seagull was "spotted." They knew then that they were near Revere Beach so they continued and discovered America. From then on, "seagulls" have been spotting Americans at Revere Beach and other beaches.

Folks, I wear the pants in my family, usually with an apron in front of them. I got a letter from one of my Reading fans saying, "Woodchipper, your poems are getting 'verse and verse'." Woodchips is very proud of Rick Hauck, Commander of Discovery. Rick is a resident of Winchester, a wonderful town where I have been working for the past 20 years. I hope that Rick's mother, Virginia, and sister, Betty, are readers of this column. I offer everyone in Winchester my hardest congratulations for having a resident that gave America's prestige a boost. I, however, was better off believing that the moon was made up of "green cheese"; that the cow jumped over the moon and the twinkling stars are up in the sky to guide us on the way to Heaven. Well, Commander Rick Hauck, I'm glad that you proved my teachers "wrong." They repeatedly said that I would be the first astronaut from the Middlesex East area, because they said, "all I ever took up in their classes was 'space'."

My grandmother remembered the "big dipper" when it was "a little drinking cup."

Good management starts with good manners, society's means of ensuring consideration of others as people. The following chip is for the young at heart and that includes everyone who reads this column. "O-Hi-O, Ha-wa-ii?" "Why did Del-a-ware a New Jersey?" "I-da-ho, but Al-as-ka." "Did Tenn-e-see Vir-ginia at the country fair?" "No, but Arkan-saw Mary-land win first prize in the hog calling contest." Edmond Baratta of Winchester said, "anyone who writes like that should be canonized." "Thanks, Ed," I replied, "do you mean I should be a saint?" "No," he exclaimed, "I mean that you should stand in front of a cannon and be 'shot' between the eyes."

My nephew, Dennis Tully, is the "pest of the month." I was paneling a room with knotty-pine when he came in and asked, "Whatcha doing?" "What the heck do you think I'm doing, making a rudder for a duck?" "Well," he continued, "what are all those holes in the wood?" "They are knot holes," I snapped. "If they're 'not holes,' then what are they?" Folks, now I know how some of my readers feel when I write something as "nutty" as that.

Schools, public buildings and some businesses conduct periodic fire drills. The time it takes to vacate a building is recorded and corrections are made to further speed up future drills. Well folks, don't ever stand near a closed church door when Mass is about to end. You will be carried out by a tidal wave of people that will compare with a Filene's bargain basement sale day crowd of people. A man turned near the end of Mass, shook my hand and said, "Peace be to you," then he nearly "mowed me down" ten minutes later as he rushed out of church, got in his car, coming within an inch of taking me along with him as a "fender ornament," as he sped out of the parking lot. In no fire drill is a building evacuated quicker. Next Sunday if that gentleman turns and says "Peace be with you," I'll return the blessing and probably add, "and may your car have a flat tire when you go out to the parking lot." And many of you thought I was a nice guy!

I'm glad that the marrying season is about over. I'm tired of reading what the bride wore, who her bridesmaids were, the school she attended, the frills and laces of her wedding gown, etc. Well, what about the groom? Here's the report I wrote when my friend Walter Woods got married last June. "Walter Woods, former U.S. Air Force pilot, married Cindy Heartburn at a lovely ceremony Saturday. Walter wore a two-piece tan suit. The trousers were gathered at the waist, fell in a straight line to the floor. The cuffs of about an inch and a half extended around the bottom of each trouser leg. The groom's coat hung loosely from the shoulders. His tie was arranged in a full windsor knot, hung daintily to a point just above the waistline. Walter's Italian shoes were secured by a dark cord interwoven through ten eyelets. Oh yes, the bride was attended by Miss Abby Seena, from West Overshoe, Idaho."

A lawyer appeared at the "Pearly Gates" and was promptly given preferential treatment and was ushered in before a number of waiting people. "Why did you do that?" he asked the keeper of the keys. "It's because of your advanced age." "What? I'm only 48 years old!" "Not according to our records where it shows the 'time' you charged your clients. You must be at least 50 years old." The man who brags that he never made a mistake invariably has a wife who did. Bill Dwyer of Wakefield is a sales representative for almost all USA airlines. I'm quite sure however that Bill hasn't heard about "Frank Perdue Airlines." It never is deterred by "fowl" weather. I must admit that there's a bit of "squawking," among the crew members. A rooster's lament, "What the heck is the use, yesterday an egg, today a rooster and tomorrow a 'feather duster.'"

Father Vincent Gianni is a personal friend of Woodchips. He is known as the "singing priest" where he is assigned at St. Michael's Church in North Andover. I told Richard Hamel (a parishoner at that church) to give Fr. Gianni a "C" note for me. But alas, Richard couldn't oblige - he was never a "boy soprano," so he couldn't reach that high. I hope you readers didn't think I was giving Richy a $100 bill. Brother, you know you're getting old when you sit in a rocking chair and can't get it going; your knees buckle but your belt won't and your back goes out, more than you do. Five-year-old Linda Shea told me there are nine children in her family. "Gee," I said, "they must cost your parents a lot of money." "Oh, no, we don't buy them, my mother gets them at the hospital." When Joe Altavesta was going to school, his teacher, Miss Sullivan, asked him, "What do we have today Joseph that is very important and we didn't have 50 years ago?" Joe didn't hesitate a second, shouting "Me, teacher." Star of the Week: Ginnee Beebe of Wakefield.

Summer's farewell

The days and months have swiftly passed
And soon we'll feel the wintry blast.
Where once the row of corn did grow,
Nature will sow her crop of snow.

It's Nature's way to tell us all
To listen for her clarion call.
The time has come for us to know,
That Summer's gone, with all its glow.

Have hope - for Summer will come again
For time like wheels will have no end.
Then geese and robins will say,
"Hello"
And corn and flowers again will grow.

ROVING

The conversation started out as most dinner dialogues begin: light and fluttery chit-chat during which, at times, everybody is speaking at once and the words seem to have the weight of butterflies darting about from one set of lips to another. With any luck, someone would suddenly burst forth with something significant to say, and the rest of us would instantly shut-up and listen. As soon as those verbal pearls of wisdom were spoken, the butterflies would resume their playful antics.

Then one of the guests spilled out a statement that soared through the dining room, reverberating off the china cabinet and plaster walls and settling back between us, causing another one of those rare moments of dead-silence. The statement was: "Nobody reads anymore. Everybody waits for books to become movies. We're living in an age where movies are the main source of intellectual absorption, not reading."

The fellow who'd made the comment had been deeply involved in a debate with a young woman at the table over the importance of reading in this day and age.

Another member of the dinner party abruptly interjected: "That's hogwash. I know many people who love to read. I love to read. I read probably two or three books — for fun, mind you — a month. Of course, I have to do a lot of reading for my job also."

This avid reader was a high school teacher, and therefore, according to the general consensus of the rest of us at the table, did not fit into the category of mainstream America. "Mainstream America" was defined as those of us who live day to day without reading being a pre-requisite to our careers. Say, the average person who spends his life driving a truck or operating a computer or cooking hamburgers.

"Perhaps it's a good thing that movies are becoming popular substitutions for reading," the first fellow noted. "If it were not for film, these people in mainstream America would never take the time to experience the messages being written by writers."

This statement brought mixed views. Another person at the table piped up with, "Books and movies are two different mediums, and they shouldn't be compared. After all, most films are not conceived from great books, and many, many great books are never made into movies."

We seemed to agree on that statement, but the young teacher indicated, "These two mediums should be compared, because even if only a few great novels become films, then those films deserve to be compared — and criticized — against the source from which they were derived."

Another woman at the table tossed in her two-cents' worth: "I rarely find a movie as good as the book. And sometimes I develop an attitude about a movie before the movie even comes out, simply because I enjoyed the book so much."

We asked her to elucidate. "Well, let me give you an example. Take the book 'Wired,' by Bob Woodward. I loved the book — you may recall that it's the life story of John Belushi. The movie version is about to be released. During the whole time the film was being made all we heard about from Hollywood writers was how much difficulty the producers were having trying to get a decent script written. I already have it in my head that the movie will never be as good as the book, so why bother going to see it?"

She had made a couple of good points: a book such as "Wired," which was authored by a truly terrific writer, a writer who'd received numerous accolades for his journalistic prowess during the Watergate era, would surely be difficult to transfer over onto celluloid. But not because there isn't enough talent in the film industry to do the translating; because the film version of John Belushi's life would never be as wild or colorful as the real life of John Belushi. In print, his life story is merely the facts being recorded for posterity's sake.

"I read recently that Michael Chiklis, the young unknown actor from Andover who plays Belushi in 'Wired' said that Belushi O.K.'d the film project in a dream," someone said. "That's enough to make me not want to see the film."

Another person commented, "I've actually seen films that I thought were better than the books. Take many of the stories by authors such as John O'Hara and John D. MacDonald. Granted, they've written some magnificent books. But many of the film versions of their books were better than the novels they wrote."

The teacher noted, "I think the movie versions of, say, many of the books you're talking about may have been as good as the books, but I don't think they were necessarily better." She gave another example to back up her point: "Take Peter Benchley's 'Jaws.' There's an example of a wonderfully written book, and at the same time, Steven Spielberg did a marvelous job of making it into a movie. Both were great, but one was not, in my opinion, better than the other."

Someone mentioned that they rarely read novels that were written after the movies came out. "Those books are usually thrown together, simply to sell on the heels of a successful film, and they are seldom worth reading."

Someone gave an example there, too: "One of the follow-up 'Jaws' movies is just such a case. The book came out after the film, just because of the film. And the sad part about it, the book was written by an excellent writer, a fellow by the name of Hank Searls, who's written numerous bestsellers, most of them back in the fifties and sixties. Why a writer with his talent would want to write a book like that is beyond me. Of course, that is a rhetorical question. We all know it's because of the almighty dollar. That's why these writers prostitute themselves and write a lot of the garbage we see on the bookshelves."

There are many instances where it appears that novels are written after the success of a film, but in truth, they were little-known literary gems before they became films. "It's the film that draws attention to these books, and as a result of the success of a film, many good books get read. Take 'Wall Street' and 'D.O.A.' as examples. They were both pretty good books before the movie versions came out. Then they sold pretty well after the movies were released. I think 'Cocktail' is another good example. That was a pretty good book, also. And the best example would be 'Less Than Zero,' a gem of a novel written by Bret Easton Ellis, a senior at UNH. The film came out, and then interest in the book soared. A lot of people thought the book was a result of the movie. But it's actually just the opposite."

Then there was the case of movies which, no matter how good they are, never seem to live up to the novel form. "The classic case of this is the works of Stephen King. No matter who makes a Stephen King novel into a movie, the movie never seems to live up to the book. And there have been some great King books made into movies — 'Carrie,' 'The Shining' and 'Dead Zone' come to mind," were the comments of yet another member of the dinner party.

"Which brings me back to my original premise that they are two different mediums en-

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—For the first time in 20 years, enrollment in the Stoneham Public Schools has increased — by three.

Although early figures show the number of grade six through 12 students continuing to drop, elementary school enrollment went up by 54 pupils. The senior high — grades nine through 12 — has an average of 202 students per class. Middle school enrollment has declined by 40.

—Elementary school enrollment is expected to explode by the 1990's, according to Lynnfield Superintendent of Schools Dr. Sally Dias.

Although enrollment in Lynnfield has decreased 46 percent since 1973, the elementary schools there increased by eight percent this year — or 54 pupils.

Thoughts are surfacing there about once again taking over the South School, now the home of John Hancock.

—The Winchester Youth Center is seeking donations of sturdy used furniture for its game room in McCall Jr. High. If you'd like to get rid of couches, chairs and tables in good condition, phone 721-7129.

—Tewksbury's new transitional kindergarten and grade one program is in place to serve children who were recommended to repeat kindergarten or who "just managed" to be promoted to first grade.

Children spend the morning in a modified first grade program and the afternoon in a modified kindergarten program. Deciding where these children will spend next year should be interesting.

—Congratulations to North Reading High School Principal Dr. William Butler on his election to the presidency of the Massachusetts Secondary School Administrators' Association.

—Students, faculty and staff at St. Mary's School in Winchester recently conducted a canned food and school supply drive to benefit children in Jamaica affected by Hurricane Gilbert.

For two years, the St. Mary's students have been in touch with their "brothers and sisters" at the island's Chetwood School. St. Mary's students welcomed the opportunity to share with their pen pals — and to put global awareness into action.

—The wolves are coming! The wolves are coming! To Wakefield's Greenwood Union Church on October 17th and to Melrose's Beebe School on the 18th — admission free but "donations gratefully accepted." They come from Colorado through "Mission: Wolf" and will be visiting schools in Wakefield while they are in this area of the country.

To catch the program this year and to find out how to book it for your school in the future, contact Esther Nowell of PAWS in Wakefield at 245-7458.

tirely," said the guy who began this argument — albeit a friendly one, in the first place.

"There is one area we haven't touched in this discussion," the teacher added. "There are many great books that should be made into movies and haven't been. Take the writings of Dean H. Koontz. They deserve to be made into films, but haven't been."

"No," butted in another guest. "There is one other area we haven't touched. Perhaps this dinner conversation should be made into a book. Or perhaps a movie. That's it! It might be one of those cases where the film is better than the book."

At that point we unanimously agreed to switch our conversation to the Red Sox.

October 16 is D-Day for new 508 area code

October 16 is "D-Day" for the new 508 Area Code in Massachusetts. First Phone of New England, the region's only locally based long distance carrier, advises businesses to take steps now to ensure a smooth transition — and avoid telecommunications nightmares next month.

"Beginning on Sunday, October 16, calls to Area Codes 617 and 508 will require dialing the three-digit area code," says G. Brady Buckley, vice president for sales and marketing at First Phone of New England. "Many of our customers have asked us for guidelines on preparing for that day, and we thought they might be of interest to businesses throughout the Commonwealth."

Here are several of First Phone's tips on "Getting Ready for the New Area Code":

Whether or not your business Area Code is changing:

—Contact your phone vendor about technical and billing modifications

Telephone system hardware and software differ significantly from system to system. You should contact the vendor from which you purchased your telephone system to determine how to make appropriate changes, if necessary, to your system before October 16. You should be sure to ask about three major areas:

A. Speeddialing may be the biggest technical problem for you to handle. This capability allows members of your staff to program frequently called numbers into the phone system and call these numbers at the push of a button.

In some systems, speeddialing is programmed in a central computer. This computer will need to be reprogrammed for the new area codes. In others, speeddialing is programmed by the user of each telephone set. You will have to tell each phone user how to reprogram frequently called numbers in the 508 area code.

B. Toll restriction enables you to prevent selected telephones from making toll or long distance phone calls. The new 508 Area Code will not affect the toll (or billing) status of calls. However, some calls across the 508/617 boundary may be "misread" as toll calls by your system, making these calls inaccessible to toll restricted phones. To avoid this, you may need to modify your toll-restriction arrangements.

C. Transparent toll calls, or toll calls that can be made without dialing "1" before the number, may also be affected by the new area code. With the introduction of the 508 area code, some of these "transparent" calls will now require a "1" plus the area code when dialing. Users should be made aware of these changes.

To avoid confusion, call your vendor right away and discuss the issues detailed above. Also, make sure your vendor makes you aware of the effects of 508 on all aspects of your particular system.

—Complete changes by end of business day on Friday, October 14

Because the area code change will take place on Sunday, October 16, you should complete all system reprogramming and staff training by the end of the workday on Friday, October 14. This will reduce the risk of running into phone system problems when business resumes on Monday morning.

If your Area Code is changing from 617 to 508:

—Contact your Yellow Pages vendors to modify your ads

As you may know, Yellow Pages publishers are separate entities from telephone carriers. Therefore, changes to your phone number are not automatically reflected in the Yellow Pages. You should contact your sales representative at each directory in which you are listed to verify new publication deadlines and to ensure that your new number and area code will be correctly printed in your ad — as well as your listing.

—Reprint letterhead, business cards and sales or customer materials

Most businesses have already changed their phone number on letterhead and business cards, but some may have overlooked making the changes on additional printed materials on which a phone number is listed (e.g., sales brochures, spec sheets, newsletter mastheads, staff orientation materials, etc.).

—Notify your customers and vendors

Capitalize on this opportunity to contact your preferred customers and most frequent vendors with a telephone-update postcard or letter, notifying them of your new area code and alerting them to your firm's new products or services.

In any case:

—Plan to be away on vacation for the last two weeks in October

A mid-October vacation should not be necessary if you follow these tips from First Phone of New England. Of course, if you had already planned to be away those two weeks, we understand. Just be prepared to brush up on your phone know-how when you come back.

It's apple harvest time!

When the leaves turn to gold and there's a chill in the air — it's apple harvest time! Just now reaching their peak season, the tempting crisp, red fruit are plentiful now at local orchards, farmers' markets and super-markets.

With the 1988 apple forecast in Massachusetts at 2,238,000 bushels, this should be an excellent year for growers throughout the Bay State. The New England outlook is even more promising with a two percent increase over the 1987 crop forecast.

"Our apple crop is very good this year," stated Vicki Cheney of Cheney's Apple Orchard in Brimfield. "We offer 35 varieties with McIntosh, Delicious and Cortland among the most popular. We also have a farmstand selling apples as well as homemade apple pies."

At Bolton Orchards in Bolton, "This year's apple crop is better than last," according to a spokesperson. "Our orchard offers many varieties with Macs, Cortlands and Crabapples in season now. We also have a retail store selling many foods such as cold cuts and cheeses in addition to apples."

Many farmstands also offer cider, preserves, fresh baked apple crisp and dumplings and other farm baked goods.

For a different and fun activity, round up your family and friends and visit your local apple orchard. Whether it's to buy a bushel or to "pick-your-own," there's plenty to enjoy for everyone. For an orchard listing, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, 100 Cambridge Street, Boston, Mass. 02202.

Apples are a dieter's delight, with only 80 calories on the average. They provide quick energy, modest amounts of a number of nutrients, and also provide essential food fiber and bulk.

Apples cooked with cinnamon and sugar are a perfect topping for ice cream or a delicious filling for a steaming crepe crowned by whipped cream and a sprinkle of nutmeg.

Baked apples are an all-time favorite. To save time, two apples can be baked in a microwave oven in only 4 minutes!

For more ideas on how to enjoy apples and cider, write to the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture at 100 Cambridge Street, Boston, Mass. 02202.

Johnny Applesseed

Johnny Applesseed was actually John Chapman (1774-1845), reports The World Almanac. According to legend he wandered through Ohio, Indiana and western Pennsylvania for 40 years, sowing seeds that produced the Midwest's orchards.

Sun

The sun is 400,000 times as bright as the full moon and gives the earth 6 million times as much light as all the other stars put together, notes The World Almanac. Actually, most of the stars that can be easily seen on any clear night are brighter than the sun — but far more distant.

Electric shock

If someone suffers an electric shock, turn off the power and don't touch the victim until contact is broken, advises The World Almanac. Pull the victim from contact using a wooden pole, rope or a loop of dry cloth. Start mouth-to-mouth resuscitation if breathing has stopped.

CREATE UNIQUE FOLK CRAFTS

Yankee Folk Crafts, by Carole Yeager, is a collection of more than 60 patterns for creating over 40 country-style heirlooms with project designs and instructions for stenciling, paper cutting, wood carving, antiquing and more.

Modern and old-fashioned techniques are used in Yankee Folk Crafts to make many popular and some all-but-forgotten folk art forms and objects. Projects vary from simple ideas like dried flower potpourri, fruit pomander balls, and scratched-carved eggs to more involved creations such as corn husk dolls, bandboxes, and cut and pierced lampshades. Instructions are clear with step-by-step details and plenty of line-drawings to help explain projects that will appeal to beginners and experts alike.

TENNIS TAUGHT IN CLASSROOMS

Can you think of anything that has been in continuous use for over a century without a single improvement? There hasn't been an improvement in the basic method of teaching tennis in 114 years. In its beginnings, all parts of the game were taught on the tennis court and players were required to learn to play by trying to memorize what they were taught.

Today, 114 years later, the same method is used. No study or reference materials are provided. The result: Much of the lesson is forgotten by the time players get out to practice and solutions to playing problems must be found by trial and error or waiting until they can afford another lesson.

Consider what would happen to the quality of education in schools and colleges and to the drop-out number if students were required to secure their educations by memorizing what a teacher or professor taught in a classroom — without taking notes and without books to refer to between classes.

It took six years of full-time writing to complete the USA Tennis Course. Comprehensive Tennis Courses can now be taught in a classroom and students graded just as they are in other subjects. The course contains 25 lessons covering all parts of the game. A set of 25 test questions and answers made up of true or false and multiple choice questions are supplied separately to instructors.

The USA Tennis Course by Victor Tantalio is available at B. Dalton Bookseller stores or by ordering direct from USA Publishers. The Course is $14.95 in the paperback and $24.95 in the hardcover. It is also available at hundreds of public libraries around the country.

SKATING ON SKIS

Right after he won his silver medal at the Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria in 1976, Bill Koch helped revolutionize the sport of cross country skiing by learning to skate on skis. Koch came home, practiced, and went on to success on the World Cup circuit the next few years by skating. In doing so, he stirred up a storm of controversy among European racers over the simple new technique.

In the years since that breakthrough, skating has become a staple of all nordic racers, from 7-year-olds to 70-year-olds. And now it is becoming more and more popular with recreational skiers, who are intrigued by the speed and grace of skating on skis.

A new book, Skating On Skis by Dick Mansfield, is written for the beginner and intermediate skier who wants to learn more about this technique. Mansfield, a masters skier who took up skating three years ago, says, "Too often I see folks with short skinny poles trying to skate on no-wax skis. It's no wonder that they find skating such a chore. With proper equipment and a little instruction, skating is actually easier to learn than traditional methods."

An accomplished skier can skate on traditional equipment but it is recommended that skis be shorter and more importantly, the ski poles be stiffer and longer. Many manufacturers have introduced dual-purpose equipment that allows skiers to ski either diagonal stride or to skate.

Skating On Skis is sold through ski shops and bookstores or can be ordered directly from the publisher. Send $10.95 to Acorn Publishing, Box 7067R, Syracuse, New York 13261.

MOUNTAIN BIKE BOOK

Since 1983 over 2.6 million mountain bikes have been sold in the U.S. The market for these bikes continues to grow and young and old alike have taken to the mountains and roads on these new machines.

The second expanded and updated edition of The Mountain Bike Book by Rob Van der Plas, published by Bicycle Books and distributed by Kampmann & Co., is now available. This lavishly illustrated edition has 200 pages and over 250 illustrations. In addition to showing you how to select, equip, ride and maintain this wonderful machine, it contains the latest information on index gearing systems and brakes.

GREAT FALL COOKBOOKS

Two new cookbooks from Yankee Books, Dublin, New Hampshire, should be in the hands of cooks everywhere, no matter what their cooking experience. Judy Gorman's Breads of New England, and The Fishmonger Cookbook, by Dorothy Batchelder, provide a wealth of valuable information and delicious recipes about their respective subjects.

Judy Gorman's Breads of New England is a comprehensive guide through a whole spectrum of home baking, from biscuits and bagels, to pizza and popovers. Gorman takes the intimidation out of baking with her friendly explanations of "how to" and "what for."
